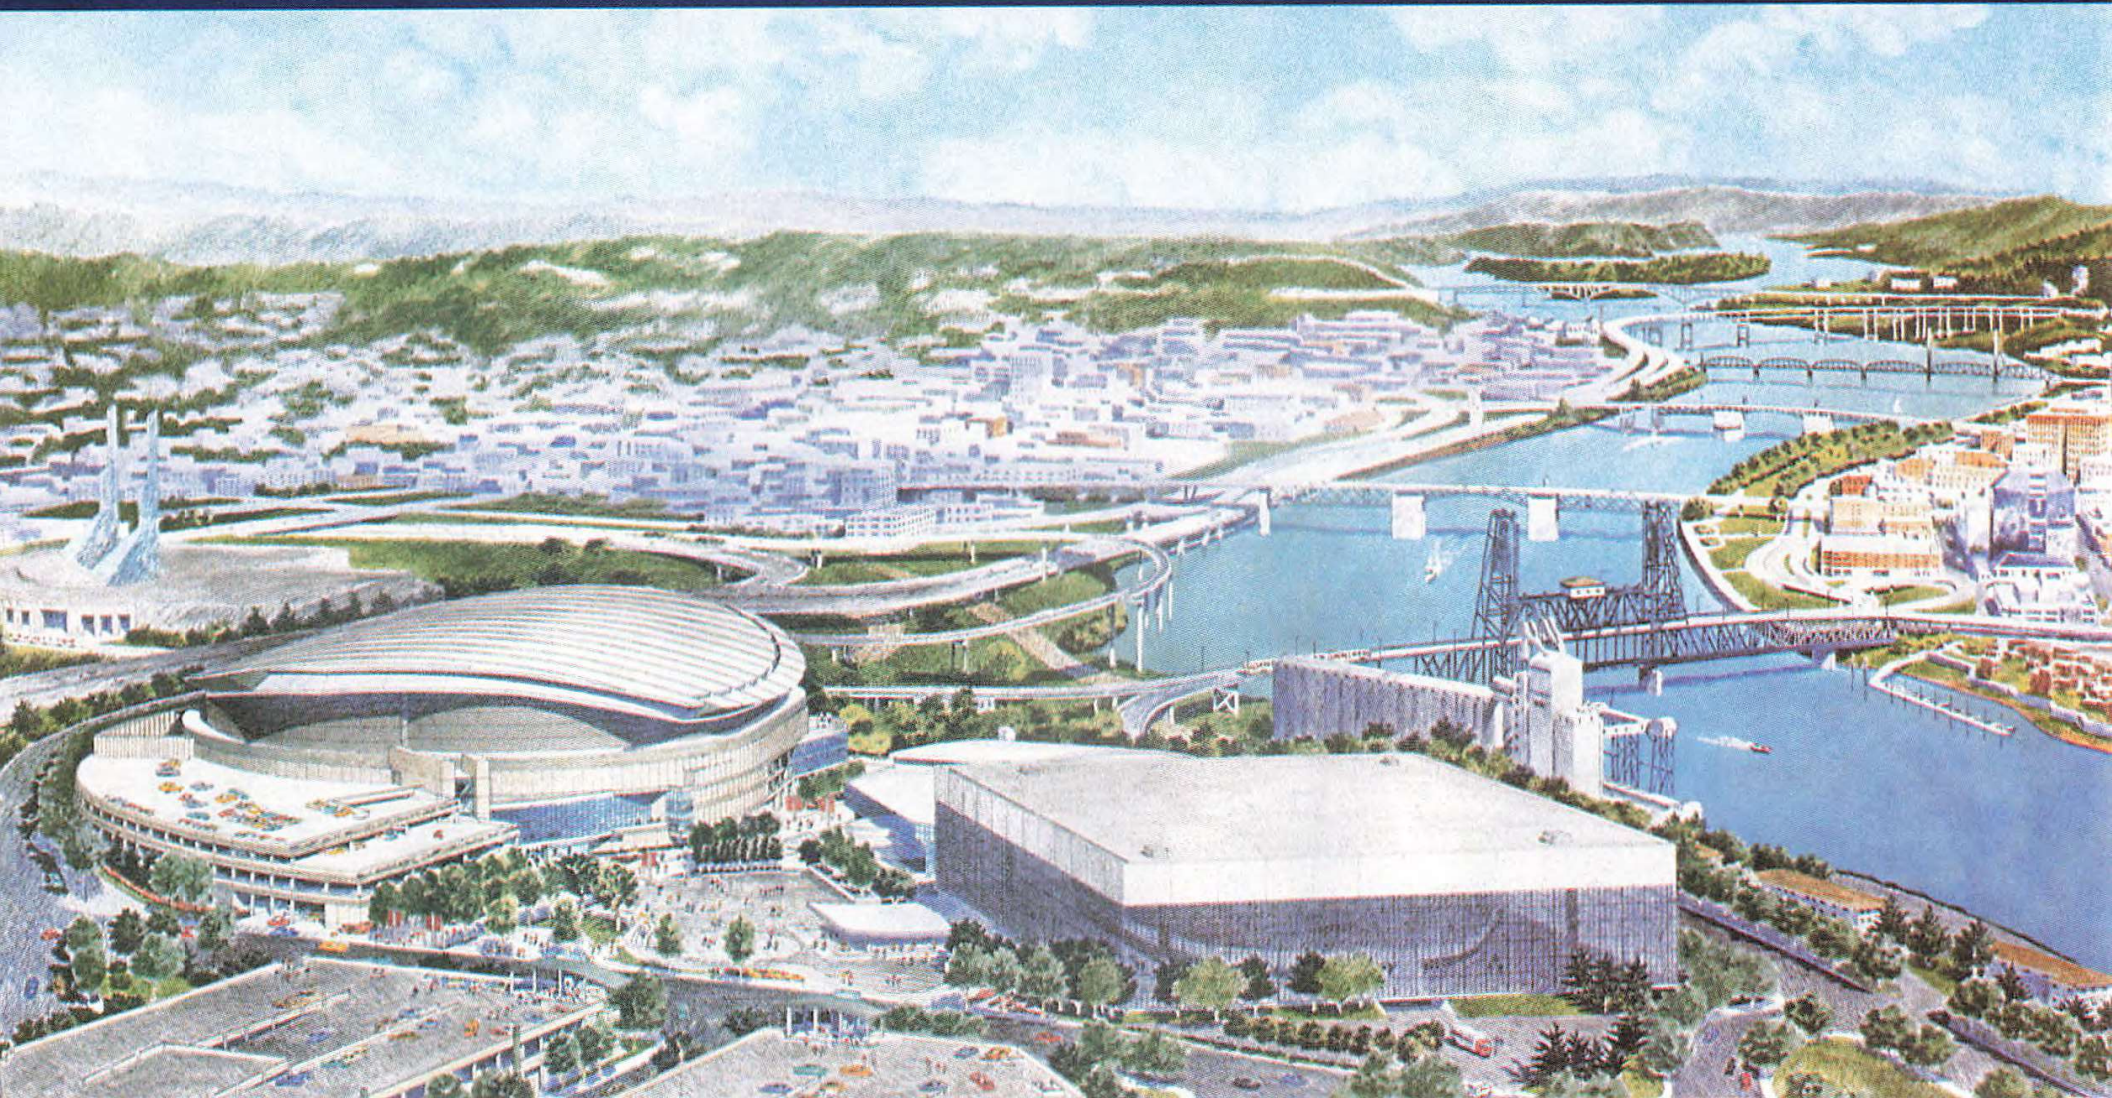
A NEW HOME FOR THE TRAIL BLAZERS IN 1995



OREGON ARENA CORP.

The Trail Blazers and the Oregon Arena Corporation started construction in July on a $262 million sports and entertainment complex adjacent to Memorial Coliseum. The Blazers plan to open the 1995-96 season in the new arena that will have a basketball capacity of 20,340. The new state-of-the art arena complex, one of the largest and most exciting development projects ever in Oregon, is located at the heart of the central east side of the city, just across the Willamette River from downtown Portland and a short walk from the Oregon Convention Center. In addition to the arena, the complex will include a building with three major restaurants, stores and team and Oregon Arena Corp., offices, as well as the largest pedestrian plaza in the city.

PAUL ALLEN

Paul Allen is in his sixth year as Chairman of the Portland Trail Blazers.

"This is a very exciting time for the Portland Trail Blazers, our fans and the entire community," Allen says. "Despite the adversity of numerous injury problems and some of our players adjusting to new roles, last year's team won 50 games for the fourth straight season. With some additions during the summer, the continued development of our younger players, and the return to health of some of our key veterans, we feel that we will again be one of the league's best teams. We are committed to realizing our goal of bringing an NBA championship to the city of Portland.

"Thanks to the efforts of countless people, particularly our fans, we have embarked on the construction phase of the Oregon Arena Project, which will result in bringing to Portland the finest sports and entertainment complex in the country," Allen adds. "Through a public-private partnership we are creating a complex that already has begun to bring numerous benefits to everyone in the area. It will substantially enhance the entertainment and business landscape of our community."

Allen, together with fellow Seattle native Bill Gates, founded the computer software firm Microsoft in 1975. The 40-year-old Allen currently serves on the Microsoft Board of Directors and is the company's second-largest shareholder. He also serves on the Board of Egghead Discount Software.

In 1985 Allen founded Asymetrix Corporation in Bellevue, Washington, and serves as its Chairman and CEO. Asymetrix launched its first product, ToolBook, in May, 1990. Asymetrix is the leading provider of multimedia tools and applications software for Windows.

A resident of Mercer Island, Washington, Allen attended Lakeside School in Seattle and Washington State University.

BERT KOLDE

Bert Kolde serves as Vice Chairman of the Trail Blazers.

"Our organization has long been one that sets high goals and demands high standards of itself, and that's never been more important to our basketball and front office staffs than at this time," Kolde says. "Our basketball staff has made the off-season moves we feel are necessary to compete for an NBA championship. We've enjoyed great success the past four seasons and continue to strive toward our goal of bringing a title home to Portland.

"Our office staff, under the direction of Harry Glickman, Geoff Petrie and Marshall Glickman, has welcomed significant challenges that can greatly benefit the entire community," Kolde adds. "Construction is underway on a state-of-the-art sports and entertainment complex that not only will serve as a new home to the Trail Blazers and our fans, but will bring new sports and entertainment opportunities to our region that to this point have not been possible. Additionally, the organization continues to develop and implement community programs that enhance the quality of life for people of all ages and economic brackets. We're proud to be able to use our position in the community to benefit people from all walks of life."

Kolde is also President of Asymetrix Corporation. Prior to joining Asymetrix, Bert was a Vice-President in the Finance Group at Seafirst Bank in Seattle. He earned his Bachelor's degree in Finance from Washington State University, after which he served as a U.S. Army officer in the Panama Canal Zone. He completed his Master's in Business Administration at the University of Washington in 1980.

Kolde and his wife, Alison, have two sons, Bronson and Sterling, and daughter Sasha.

TOP LEVEL SPORTS FOR HIS CITY

A dream becomes reality

When future historians look back on the milestones marking Oregon's progress and prosperity during the 20th century, they will likely take particular note of those who provided the leadership and inspiration.

The list will have legendary names—those of men and women who made a difference by building things, creating jobs, devoting energies to charity and generally helping shape the Oregon's social and economic character.

Surely, that list will include the name of Harry Glickman, a home-grown entrepreneur of professional sports and now President of the Portland Trail Blazers. He has accomplished something other notable Oregonians did not achieve in their fruitful lifetimes: given Oregon a national market identity.

Harry Glickman brought Portland into the major leagues. He delivered the enterprise—the Trail Blazers—that gave the city and state an identity that has helped spur growth in all economic sectors. In the era before the Blazers came to Memorial Coliseum, national wire service stories usually referred to Portland as Portland, Ore., to distinguish the Rose City from Portland, Me. After Glickman's Blazers hit town, the state identification was no longer necessary.

Glickman's dream of top level sports entertainment for his city has seen an incredible upward spiral of success spanning more than four decades. It will reach a new and lofty level in 1995 when the Blazers' $262 million state-of-the-art arena complex opens adjacent to Memorial Coliseum.

But his determination to reach for the brass ring has severely stretched his resolve more than once. Witness the road traveled in quest of an NBA team for Portland.

After a disappointing meeting in Philadelphia in early 1970 in which the NBA's expansion committee raise the price of entry into the league, Glickman was downright discouraged. The 10 local investors whom Glickman had assembled had committed $2 million to secure a franchise. However, the league's new price tag — $3.7 million — was too rich for the local investors to swallow.

A desperate Glickman, fearing fate was raining on his dream, went to Los Angeles a month later, with raincoat in hand, to face the NBA expansion committee's pending deadline for application. He was armed with shaky private financing and a scheme to persuade the league's Board of Governors to accept Portland: (1) if he could secure some interim financing; and (2) if he could launch a public subscription campaign.

There was an angel in the wings, though. A few weeks prior to the Los Angeles meeting, (left) NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy, Glickman and Oregon Governor Tom McCall are on hand to celebrate the Blazers first home game, Oct. 7, 1970.

(right) Glickman views a model of the Blazers' new $262 million arena complex now being built adjacent to Memorial Coliseum.

The real story of how the Trail Blazers wound up in Portland hasn't been told very often. The memorable date, historians should take note, was Feb. 4, 1970. It was a Wednesday. The place, Los Angeles.

Harry got a call from one of his friends, Dick Vertlieb, the former general manager of the Seattle SuperSonics. Vertlieb told Harry he knew of a Seattle man who might be interested in staking an NBA franchise. The mystery investor turned out to be Herman Sarkowsky, a successful land and real estate developer in Seattle.

Sarkowsky met with Glickman and made it clear he had no interest in joining the Portland investors. But he said he would be willing to put up all the money if he could interest two other developer friends, Larry Weinberg of Los Angeles, and Robert Schmertz of New Jersey, to join him.

Glickman's response: "We'll keep in touch."

Back in Los Angeles on February 4, Glickman discussed his original proposal on behalf of local Portland investors with Abe Pollin, owner of the Baltimore Bullets and chairman of the NBA's expansion committee. The meeting took place in Pollin's room at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

It was a dark hour for Harry because some of the other NBA owners weren't overly enthusiastic. Ned Irish, president of the New York Knicks and Madison Square Garden, knew a lot about market identity and he knew that Portland, Oregon—in pre-Blazer mania days—didn't have much. "How many people will we draw with Portland's name on the Garden marquee?" Irish asked his colleagues.

More important than Irish's skepticism was the fact that Glickman hadn't heard from Sarkowsky in several days. Tired and discouraged, Glickman left Pollin's room feeling depressed. When Harry reached the lobby, he remembered that he had left his raincoat, a useless garment in sunny Los Angeles, in Pollin's room.

When he returned to fetch it, Pollin was on the telephone. "It's for you, Harry. Someone named Sarkowsky is on the line....."

Sarkowsky told Harry that he had reached Weinberg, who was eager to buy into an NBA franchise, and that he finally had gotten in touch with Schmertz. "Schmertz is in; we're set," Sarkowsky said.

Armed with new terms and solid backers, Glickman presented a new deal. Pollin was delighted. He had already been lobbied by his brother, Harold, a prominent Portlander. The next step was a $1.5 million letter of credit Glickman needed to present to the expansion committee by noon, Friday, February 6.

Sarkowsky's Tacoma bank wired the authorization to a Los Angeles bank the next day, but Coach Jack Ramsay, and NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien, (glasses), are in the middle of the locker room celebration following the Blazers' 109-107 victory over Philadelphia on June 5, 1977, clinching the world championship for Portland.

confirmation didn't come through until Friday morning. Glickman had to break every traffic law in Los Angeles County to get the letter in hand and make it back to the Board of Governors' meeting for the noon deadline.

"I couldn't believe that we'd come this far only to have bureaucracies force us into a turnover," Glickman recalled. It was 20 minutes until High Noon. The gregarious bank manager wanted to discuss Portland's weather. "I'll tell you what," Glickman snapped, "just give me the letter right now and when Portland comes down here to play the Lakers, I'll get you the two best seats in the house."

With the letter in hand, Harry raced back to the meeting site, ever mindful of the NBA's 24-second clock and misplaced dreams.

History records that Harry met the deadline and the Board of Governors granted a franchise to Portland. February 6, was the starting date for what has proved to be one of the league's most successful members.

The Trail Blazers launch their 24th season with three NBA Finals appearances (including the 1977 championship), 16 playoff showings in the last 17 years, and the seventh best all-time win-loss record among current NBA teams.

While bringing the Trail Blazers to Portland is Glickman's shining hour, his 45 years of promoting sports entertainment in this community has produced a number of gems, among them professional hockey, top-ranked boxing matches, National Football League exhibition games and a long-standing success run with the Harlem Globetrotters.

Born in Portland, Glickman, now 68, was graduated from the University of Oregon School of Journalism in 1948 following a stint with the U.S. Army in Europe during World War II. His plans to become a sportswriter were sidetracked after college when he got involved in promotions and publicity, founding Oregon Sports Attractions in 1952.

His first big break came when he talked the Los Angeles Rams' owners into playing an exhibition football game in Portland in August of 1952. The Rams wanted a guarantee of $40,000. Glickman responded, "give me 10 days." Actually it took him six months to get the money, most of it coming from friends. However, when the Rams played the Chicago Cardinals in Multnomah (now Portland Civic) Stadium, 29,122 fans showed up—Glickman's first sellout.

Professional hockey, always a favorite of Glickman, became the next cornerstone of his success story in Portland. He attracted a Western Hockey League franchise to the city as the first major occupant of the then brand new Memorial Coliseum in 1960. His Portland Buckaroos, three-time Lester Patrick Cup winners, including one in their first year in the league, finished in first place nine times in the franchise's 13 years. The Buckaroos smashed every professional hockey attendance record outside the then tight-knit six-team NHL, and were the talk of the hockey world.

Sellouts for Glickman are pretty routine these days. Harry has had the pleasure of watching the Blazers record 726 consecutive regular season and playoff sellouts through the 1992-93 season, the longest such string by any team in sports history.

It is difficult to quantify the economic impact of Glickman's Trail Blazers. Exposing the Portland area to national television audiences can't be measured in direct dollar terms. In 1992, though, the Blazers generated millions of dollars in convention business when in a two-month span the organization was host to the NBA championship finals, the NBA draft (the first time it was held in a city other than New York), and the pre-Olympic Basketball Tournament of the Americas.

Throughout his career, Harry has been keenly aware of his responsibility to give something back to the community beyond the cultural, social and entertainment value that his sports promotions have represented. Glickman's support of the Blazers/AVIA Scholastic Improvement Concepts (BASIC) program is a prime example. It recognizes and rewards students for personal achievement, reading and writing, and it reinforces the "Stay in School" message. More than a half-million students have been involved to date.

Glickman's social conscience is well defined in deeds and driven by an awareness of his roots. He grew up nickel-and-dime poor in Old South Portland, a neighborhood long ago replaced by urban monuments of concrete and glass.

Along with other children in his neighborhood—Italian and Jewish—Glickman started selling newspapers on the street when he was eight years old. "I never went hungry," adds Glickman, whose divorced mother supported her only child by working as a garment finisher in the women's clothing industry.

Tributes continue to come for Harry. Most recently, he was honored as Portland's First Citizen for 1993. He was inducted into Oregon's Sports Hall of Fame in 1986, and each year the state's top professional athlete is honored with the Harry Glickman Professional Athlete of the Year award at The Oregonian Banquet of Champions.

Glickman is involved in Israeli sports activities, serving on the U.S. Committee, Sports for Israel, which sponsors the highly acclaimed Maccabiah Games. He also is on the board of American Friends of Wingate, a school in Israel specializing in physical education. As a result, a basketball court for immigrant children near Jerusalem bears his name.

Glickman has stepped back a bit from the rigors of the day-to-day Blazers operations, leaving the stress and strain to his son, Marshall, 33, who has ascended on his own merit to the role of senior vice president of marketing for the Blazers and the Oregon Arena Corporation. Harry and his wife, Joanne, also have two daughters, Jennifer, 27, and Lynn, 38. Lynn is the mother of the Glickman's only grandchild, Joel, 17.

Don't mention retirement to Harry Glickman. He's still actively involved in seeing that next big dream come to fruition—the dazzling new sports and entertainment complex next to Memorial Coliseum.

The pleasure it will bring to Oregonians will be another of his rewards for that one unforgettable moment when he left his raincoat in Abe Pollin's hotel room.

This article was adapted from a feature written by Wayne Thompson for the program of the 1993 Portland First Citizen Award Banquet. Thompson covered the Portland Trail Blazers for The Oregonian in the franchise's first three years.

JO ALLEN PATTON

Jo Allen Patton is in her second year as Senior Vice President and Owner's Representative for the Oregon Arena Corporation. She has served as Owner's Representative to the Portland Trail Blazers for the past three years.

With the Oregon Arena Corporation, Patton is responsible for coordinating the contractors and architects on the arena project, and representing the interests of Chairman Paul Allen. "We're striving to create the finest sports and entertainment complex in existence, a premier facility that will be the source of pride for the entire community," Patton says. "It is a very exciting project that people should enjoy watching come to life in the next two years."

Patton's professional background includes work in the retail sector, and in the development department of the Pacific Northwest Ballet. She is also responsible for the development and construction of the Jimi Hendrix Museum. A resident of Woodinville, Wash., she serves on the Washington Academy of Performing Arts Board, the Lakeside School Building and Grounds Committee, and the Meany Hall Advisory Council.

MARSHALL GLICKMAN

As Senior Vice-President of Marketing for the Portland Trail Blazers and Oregon Arena Corporation, Marshall Glickman is responsible for overseeing Blazer Broadcasting, sponsor sales and services, creative services, communications, special events, and the day-to-day development and planning for the arena project. The success of his efforts was recently recognized when the Portland Sales and Marketing Executives, International, selected Glickman as the 1992 Marketer of the Year.

Glickman started with the Blazers front office in 1983 as manager of the team's cable operations. In 1986 he left the club to accept the position of broadcast coordinator for the National Basketball Association. After one year, Glickman was promoted to director of media sales for the NBA. He returned to the Blazers organization in August of 1988 as director of business development and was promoted to vice president of marketing before assuming his current position in June of 1990.

Much of Glickman's attention the past two years has been focused on bringing to life the Oregon Arena Project, a development that incorporates the existing Memorial Coliseum with a new arena, entertainment complex, and public plaza. It is easily the most ambitious project of its kind ever undertaken by an NBA organization.

An Oregon native, Glickman graduated from Lewis & Clark College in 1981. He is a member of the American Advertising Museum and Oregon Symphony Boards of Directors. Glickman lists tennis, golf and music as his hobbies.

GEOFF PETRIE

Geoff Petrie, the first-ever Portland Trail Blazer, enters his fourth year as Senior Vice-President of Operations for the team. He oversees the areas of basketball operations, team contractual negotiations, scheduling, team travel and accounting. He has played a role in the basketball activities of the team the last nine years.

A graduate of Princeton, Petrie shared co-Rookie of the Year honors with Dave Cowens after being Portland's first draft selection prior to its inaugural season of 1970-71. The former 6-foot-5 guard stands fourth on Portland's career scoring list (9,732), third in assists (2,057) and ninth in games played (446). He averaged 21.8 points in six NBA seasons before a knee injury cut short an outstanding career at the age of 28. The Trail Blazers retired his uniform number, 45, on October 1, 1981.

Several years in business preceeded Petrie's return to the Blazers during the 1985-86 season, his first of five years serving as radio analyst. He also assisted the coaching staff as a shooting instructor during the last four of those seasons before moving into the front office on a full-time basis July 1, 1990.

Petrie's front office tenure has been a busy one. Most recently, he has been instrumental in the extension of contracts to Clyde Drexler, Buck Williams, Mark Bryant, Jerome Kersey and Rick Adelman; the acquisition of Rod Strickland, Harvey Grant and Chris Dudley; and the restructuring of the basketball operations department.

When he's not in the office or with the team, the 45-year-old Petrie enjoys working out and playing golf. He and his wife, Anne-Marie, reside in West Linn.

BRAD GREENBERG

Brad Greenberg is in his second season serving as the Trail Blazers' Vice President of Player Personnel, a position he assumed following three seasons as director of player personnel. He assists in the job of inner-league communication regarding roster management decisions, coordinates the day-to-day management of the scouting operation, and continues to work in all aspects of evaluation and acquisition of college, professional and international talent.

Greenberg spends much of the season scouring the colleges, CBA and international leagues for talent. His off-season is devoted to sizing up talent at summer league games and at international amateur events. Since Greenberg earned his player personnel position in 1989 after two years as a team scout, the Blazers have completed significant roster moves including the acquisition of Buck Williams, Rod Strickland, Harvey Grant and Tracy Murray, and the drafting of Cliff Robinson, Dave Johnson and James Robinson. He oversees a comprehensive scouting data base that assimilates information from thousands of scouting reports.

The 39-year-old Greenberg has nine years of NBA experience, including two seasons as assistant coach with the Los Angeles Clippers and one with the New York Knicks. He carried the dual roles of coaching and player personnel for two seasons with the Clippers. Greenberg played collegiate basketball under Jim Lynam at American University, graduating in 1977, and served as an assistant coach to him for one year at American followed by three seasons at St. Joseph's. Greenberg spent six seasons at St. Joseph's before joining Lynam in Los Angeles. In seven seasons in the collegiate coaching ranks, Greenberg's teams posted a 141-65 record and made two NCAA and three NIT appearances.

Brad and his wife Fran, a former Hoop Magazine columnist and CBA Director of Public Relations, live in Portland with their 7-year-old son Cory, and 2-year-old daughter, Ali.

BUCKY BUCKWALTER

Morris "Bucky" Buckwalter is in his 17th season of service to the Portland Trail Blazers, acting as Senior Scouting Consultant for the organization. He assumed the current position prior to the 1992-93 season following 15 years that encompassed coaching, scouting and player personnel duties. In his current capacity, he assists with roster evaluation, specifically as it pertains to collegiate and international talent.

Buckwalter, 59, has served the Trail Blazers organization as an assistant coach and scout from 1979 through January of 1986 when he assumed the position of vice-president of basketball operations. He has earned the reputation for discovering talent from myraid sources and his efforts have extended to every area of the globe. During Buckwalter's tenure, the Blazers drafted its current nucleus of Clyde Drexler, Jerome Kersey, Terry Porter and Cliff Robinson and traded for Buck Williams. He was named NBA Executive of the Year following a 1990-91 season that saw the Blazers post a 63-19 record.

Buckwalter began his professional basketball career as an assistant coach with the Seattle SuperSonics during the 1972-73 season. He served as interim head coach late that season before becoming the club's assistant general manager the following year. Head coaching stints with the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association, Fresno Stars of the Western Basketball Association and the Brazilian national team preceded the move to Portland.

A 1952 graduate of La Grande High School in eastern Oregon, Buckwalter paced his Blue Mountain Conference team to a fourth place finish in the state tournament his senior year. He played college basketball at Utah, where he was named all-conference his last two seasons. Utah reached the NCAA tournament his junior and senior years.

After serving as an assistant coach for eight seasons at Utah, Buckwalter took over as head coach at Seattle University in 1967-68 and in five seasons posted a 79-49 record, a .617 winning percentage.

Buckwalter's wife, Paula, and son, Bryan, are two of the Blazers' most visible supporters at games and club functions. Bryan has worked with the team's broadcast crew.

RICK ADELMAN

An old Chinese proverb states: "Stability breeds success." In the case of Portland Trail Blazers' head coach Rick Adelman that is an axiom which certainly rings true.

Adelman is entering his sixth season as the head coach of the Trail Blazers—the fourth-longest tenure of any current head coach in the league. Only three other NBA head coaches (Don Nelson, Wes Unseld and Jerry Sloan) have been with their team longer.

Since becoming the seventh head coach in Portland history on Feb. 19, 1989, Adelman has posted a 244-119 (.672) record, the fourth-best record in NBA history for a coach with four complete seasons on the sidelines. He recorded the 200th win of his career November 22, 1992, reaching the milestone in just his 288th game. At the time, no coach in NBA history had reached 200 wins faster than the 288 games in which it took Adelman to accomplish the feat. He is surpassed only by Hall-of-Famer Jack Ramsay (453-367/.552) in victories earned by a Portland head coach. Adelman's coaching career has earned the respect of many.

"I've spent a lot of time in the locker room to see how Rick would talk about tactics and analyze a game," said Trail Blazers' Chairman Paul Allen. "I've been very impressed by the job he's done and the rapport he has with the players."

Or as Mike Dunleavy, vice-president of basketball operations/head coach of the Milwaukee Bucks mused last season, "Rick Adelman and his staff have to be given a major share of the credit for Portland's success because of the way the players respond to them, the way they put out every night."

Last season could be described as the most challenging of Adelman's coaching career. Clyde Drexler (33 games) and Jerome Kersey (17 games) separately missed more games than the entire starting five in any of the previous three seasons. Portland starters missed a total of 58 games last year, the largest number of games missed by the starting quintet since the 1986-87 season, and forced Adelman to produce a club-record 21 different starting lineups.

Off the court there were distractions as well. First, a traffic accident claimed the life of Adelman's sister-in-law, leaving him and his wife, Mary Kay, in the process of adopting his sister-in-law's two young children. In January, allegations of sexual misconduct were leveled at four Trail Blazers by two teenagers in Salt Lake City, Utah. And on the eve of the 1993 NBA Playoffs, Adelman's father, Leonard, passed away from a heart attack.

Despite all of the adversity, Adelman's even-keeled presence provided stability and helped guide the Blazers to their fourth straight 50-win season and their 15th playoff berth in 16 years.

"Rick has done a terrific job of coaching through everything that has happened," Portland's senior

"He has done a terrific job of coaching through everything that has happened."

---- Geoff Petrie

vice-president of operations Geoff Petrie told the San Antonio Express-News in May. "He has great inner strength and character."

"Look at all of the injuries Portland had," said Indiana Pacers head coach Larry Brown, then-head coach of the Los Angeles Clippers. "You can't lose a player of Clyde Drexler's dimension for 33 games and hope to have the kind of winning season Portland had. Rather than under-achieve, I think the Blazers over-achieved."

Adelman was runner-up for NBA Coach of the Year honors in 1991, the season he also coached the West Team in the NBA All-Star Game, and was third in the balloting the previous year. He has been selected NBA Coach of the Month on three occasions. During his tenure the team has broken nearly every franchise standard related to winning. His accomplishments haven't gone unnoticed, especially by his players.

"Rick has been fabulous, he's done a super job," said Clyde Drexler. "He has so many strengths; that's one of the things that makes him so valuable. He knows the game, he knows the players, he relates well, and he's a great X and O guy."

"Rick can relate to the players; he played in the league," says Terry Porter. "He knows what it's like to play back-to-back games, the NBA schedule, and just the everyday routine in this league. He has a better understanding of how players think sometimes. That definitely helps."

"Of all the coaches I've played for, I think he really understands what he wants from his players," says 12-year veteran Buck Williams. "He wouldn't ask anything from Buck Williams or Cliff Robinson that he wouldn't ask from himself. Players really respect that."

Behind Adelman's less-is-more leadership style that seeks to "create an atmosphere where the player can succeed" the Trail Blazers have set the pace for the powerful Western Conference. But all of the success hasn't spoiled Rick Adelman, who takes the success in stride.

"I've never doubted the fact that I could coach, but anybody who has a pretty good record, no matter what level you're at, generally has some pretty good talent," Adelman says. "I think I've been blessed with the team I inherited. It's a players league, but you have to work hard to give the players a chance to succeed."

The approach that leads to Adelman's success has been formed from his experience as a player, community coach, NBA assistant coach and as a family man. His basketball career began at St. Pius X High School in Downey, Calif. and at Loyola University, where he scored what was then a school-record 1,415 points (an 18.6 average) in four years, beginning with the 1964-65 season.

Adelman was selected by Portland from San Diego in the expansion draft of 1970 and played three seasons with the Trail Blazers (1970-71 through 1972-73). He averaged 9.8 points and 4.6 assists in 237 games, establishing what then was a Portland record for assists with 413 (5.2) in the second season.

Overall, the 6-foot-2 guard played in 462 regular-season games during a seven-year stint in the NBA that included stops in San Diego, Portland, Chicago, New Orleans and Kansas City-Omaha. He recorded 3,579 points (for a 7.7 average), 1,606 assists (for a 3.5 average) and shot .415 from the field and .713 from the foul line.

After retiring from the NBA, Adelman returned to Loyola to earn a master's degree in history and then worked for a year with Converse in southern California before accepting a head coaching job at Chemeketa Community College in Salem, Ore. in 1977.

In six seasons at Chemeketa his teams amassed a 141-39 (.783) record, winning outright or sharing three Oregon community college championships and one Region 18 title. He also worked in counseling and taught physical education courses.

Jack Ramsay asked Adelman to join his coaching staff in Portland during the spring of 1983. He maintained his spot on the Blazer bench when Mike Schuler succeeded Ramsay in May of 1986.

After taking over for Schuler in February of 1989, Adelman's team overcame an unforgiving schedule and some key injuries to advance to the NBA playoffs for the 12th time in 13 years. The word "interim" was dropped from his job title and he was awarded the position outright May 11, 1989. Adelman signed his first contract extension Feb. 20, 1990 and his current pact July 29, 1992. His current contract runs through the 1994-95 season, with an option for 1995-96.

"Basketball is a game of mistakes, especially at this level," explains Adelman. "If you can't accept that, you're going to inhibit your players' creativity. This is a player's league, you have to accept that. And I think you get a lot more out of people by being positive rather than negative.

"I like to coach the way I wanted to be coached when I was a player," he adds. "That's just the way I've approached it, and the players have responded well. I try to include the players (in giving input) because it is as much their team as mine. I don't feel like I'm up here and they're down there."

Adelman's popularity in Portland is due as much to his lifestyle off the court as it is to his success with a clipboard. He spends as much time as he can with his wife, Mary Kay, and children Kathy, R.J., Laura and David. All four children are involved in athletics and Rick attends as many games as possible. Friends and neighbors claim that Adelman is the same "guy next door" that he was before the bright lights of the NBA discovered the City of Roses. Much of his free time is devoted to involvement in his church, local boys club and speaking to a variety of business and civic groups.

"Family is the most important part of my life," says Adelman, who turned 47 years old last June 16. "Everybody has a job, and it has to be important to you. But it's the people around you who are really important. If you lose sight of that, you've lost everything."

And for Rick Adelman, the stability he provides on and off the basketball court has translated into a lot of success for the Trail Blazers.

JACK SCHALOW

Jack Schalow is in his ninth season with the Trail Blazers, and seventh year as an assistant coach. A veteran of collegiate coaching ranks and the Continental Basketball Association, Schalow has served the Blazers in a variety of capacities during his tenure with the club.

"Jack works very well with our players in a number of capacities," says Rick Adelman, who brought Schalow back to the bench from the scouting circuit when he ascended to the head coaching job in February of 1989. "He has considerable knowledge and experience that he's able to pass along. We're fortunate to have him with us."

Schalow joined the Blazers as a scout in December of 1985. Prior to undertaking those duties, he was the original head coach of the Wyoming Wildcatters in the CBA. In the 1982-83 season, the Wildcatters' first, Schalow guided the team to a runner-up finish in the league's Western Division. The next year, Wyoming won the Western Division and went the distance in the CBA championship series before falling to Phil Jackson's Albany Patroons in the final game. The 1984-85 season saw the Wildcatters win the Western Division regular season race but finish third in the division playoffs. In his three seasons at Wyoming, Schalow fashioned a 69-67 record and was runner-up for the CBA Coach-of-the-Year Award following the 1983-84 campaign.

In February of 1991, Schalow joined Adelman and fellow assistant coach John Wetzel on the coaching staff of the West Team at the NBA All-Star Game.

Schalow is widely noted at the collegiate level as well. A graduate of University of the Pacific, Schalow served as freshman coach at his alma mater in Stockton, Calif. His other head coaching assignment came at Morehead State in Kentucky. Schalow also served as assistant coach at Duke, Louisiana State and Seattle University. Two of his five seasons at Seattle were as an assistant under Bucky Buckwalter, current senior scouting consultant with the Blazers.

Jack is the father of daughter of Traci Ann and son Terry. He and his wife, Valda, and children, Bridger and Lanie, reside in southwest Portland. When not on the basketball court, Jack can most often be found working out or working with his cutting horses. A native of Velva, North Dakota, Schalow is an accomplished rider who has shown regionally and travelled across the country to develop his cutting abilities.

JOHN WETZEL

John Wetzel, a former player, assistant coach and head coach in the NBA, is in his sixth season with the Trail Blazers.

Wetzel, 48, was head coach with the Phoenix Suns during the 1987-88 season after serving as an assistant with the team for eight years. A veteran of seven seasons as a player with Los Angeles, Phoenix and Atlanta, he retired in 1976 (with averages of 3.4 points and 1.4 assists) only to return to the game as a coach two years later.

"John Wetzel is one of the most experienced assistants in the league," says head coach Rick Adelman. "He's been in the league a long time and knows the business very well. I'm very happy that he's a part of our staff."

Wetzel joined Adelman and Blazer assistant coach Jack Schalow on the coaching staff of the West Team at the 1991 NBA All-Star Game. He had served as an assistant coach in the 1981 classic while with the Suns.

His first coaching experience came during the 1978-79 season when he guided the Washington Lumberjacks of the Western Basketball Association to a 29-19 record. A 1966 graduate of Virginia Tech, Wetzel was a finalist for the Cleveland Cavaliers' head coaching position in 1986.

Wetzel was an eighth-round selection of the Lakers in the 1966 NBA Draft but did not play that season due to a broken wrist. He was picked by Phoenix in the 1968 Expansion Draft but spent two years in military service before joining the Suns prior to the 1970-71 campaign. Following three seasons with Atlanta, Wetzel returned to Phoenix in time for the 1975-76 season that saw the Suns advance to the NBA Finals. In the summer of 1976, he became the first player to retire as a member of the Suns.

Wetzel and his wife, Dianne, have two sons, Mark and Paul. Wetzel enjoys a wide variety of recreational activities, including in-line skating, hiking and golf.

WHAT ARE YOU

Dreaming

a b o u t ?

(Bet it isn't healthcare costs.)

You're in a deep slumber. The kind where nothing short of a sonic boom could wake you up. And chances are pretty good that in this high-REM state, health plans are the furthest thing from your subconscious mind. It is, after all, 5 in the AM. When hard-working people like you are supposed to be sleeping. Dreaming about real important business meetings or whatever. But not about us. Not about the fact that we're the only Northwest company that truly offers managed care for every one of our health plans. Which means, of course, that we're doing just about everything possible to keep costs under control. Or, the fact that we're flexible enough for you to get the rates and benefits that work for you and your employees. Or that you can choose from a growing panel of providers, more than 3500 at last count. Then again, why should you think about such details anyway. After all, you happen to be covered by us. Or will be once you call your agent, broker or PACC Health Plans at 503-659-6000 or 1-800-568-5631. So there's really no reason for you to be taken away from your visit to Tahiti. BZZZZZZZ! MIKE SHIMENSKY

Mike Shimensky is in his seventh season as trainer for the Trail Blazers.

Now in his 13th year in the league, Shimensky began his NBA career with the San Diego Clippers in 1981. During his tenure with the club, he developed a strong reputation that led to his being hired by the Trail Blazers prior to the 1987-88 season. He served as trainer for the West Team at the 1991 NBA All-Star Game in Charlotte.

After attending Centralia Junior College in Washington, where he played baseball and basketball, Shimensky graduated from Central Washington University. He was inducted into the Hall of Fame at Central Washington in the spring of 1991.

Shimensky earned a master's degree in athletic training at the University of Arizona in 1973 and served as that school's assistant trainer, working with basketball, football and track and field. He became the first certified full-time trainer in the Phoenix school system and regularly held training seminars through the Sports Medicine Clinic to benefit coaches, trainers and nurses by providing them with better insight in to sports-related injuries.

Shimensky is a member of the National Athletic Trainers' Association and the National Strength and Conditioning Association. He and his wife, Roberta, have three children, Daniel, Andrew and Lauren.

Panasonic introduces the C.P.A. Check Printing Accountant.™ It writes checks, keeps your balance, and tracks your spending. It'll change the way you pay bills forever.

While it can't make bill paying painless, it can make it nearly effortless. The C.P.A. Check Printing Accountant can actually write your checks, adjust your balance and itemize your expenses. It uses your regular, personal checks — no special ones needed. It even stores the names of your 25 most frequently used payees. So, all you have to do is enter the amount and print. It automatically dates each check and updates your balance. Its memory will help you keep track of cash and credit card transactions. And it can print out spending reports by category, like business expenses, tax deductibles, etc.

The C.P.A. Check Printing Accountant is compact and portable, so you can carry it wherever you spend money.

Which makes it a lot easier to answer the eternal question: "Where did all the money go?"

THE PANASONIC C.P.A. CHECK PRINTING ACCOUNTANT. WHILE IT CAN'T ELIMINATE THE PAIN OF PAYING BILLS, IT CAN REDUCE THE TIME YOU SUFFER.

"Who's going to make sure the trees will be here tomorrow?"

"Not an easy question. But that's what my son asked the other day. He's thinking about it. Just like everybody. He wants to know if the trees will still be around when he grows up. Well, working for Georgia-Pacific like I do, I can tell him we're doing our part. Planting new trees by the millions. Setting aside land. Making sure the forests will always be here. For everybody. Of course, I can't speak for other companies out there. But I know we're doing what's right."

Pick & Roll.

1. Pick one of our conveniently located BP service stations.
2. Roll on, with high quality BP Super.

On your next road trip, visit the nearest member of the BP team. We're located throughout Trail Blazer country with everything you need for a winning road record.

Get the best performance your car can deliver by using BP Super, our highest octane gasoline. Super, like all BP gasolines, has the highest level of engine cleaning power to cleanse your entire fuel system of the performance-robbing carbon deposits other gasolines may leave behind. With continued use of BP Super, intake valves, fuel injectors and ports get cleaned, and stay clean. And that means better performance.

In fact, we're so confident in BP Super, we guarantee it will not cause fuel system problems of any kind. If it does, we'll fix the problem, free of charge.

So make your next road trip a winner with high octane BP Super.

STAR PERFORMANCE.

Every Blazer player and fan knows the importance of performing at peak level,
game after game.
That's the kind of performance we engineer into our System^{3}® Gasolines.
In every octane grade,
it helps restore performance to older cars and keeps new cars running like new.
Fill up with System^{3} and run like a star.

SOMETIMES THE BEST THERE IS COMES FROM OUT IN OREGON.

It's tough to beat a good team with home court support. That's why "Insurance from out in Oregon" makes so much sense for residents of the Pacific Northwest.

Standard offers outstanding life and disability insurance and retirement plans for individuals and groups. Sound investment of the premiums and home office efficiency provide financial strength. With agents and customer service representatives just around the corner, you can't beat Standard for customer satisfaction.

Team Standard consistently pays policyowners higher dividends than projected at the time of purchase. It pays to play ball with Standard. Forget the hoopla from big eastern insurance companies. Capitalize on your home court advantage!

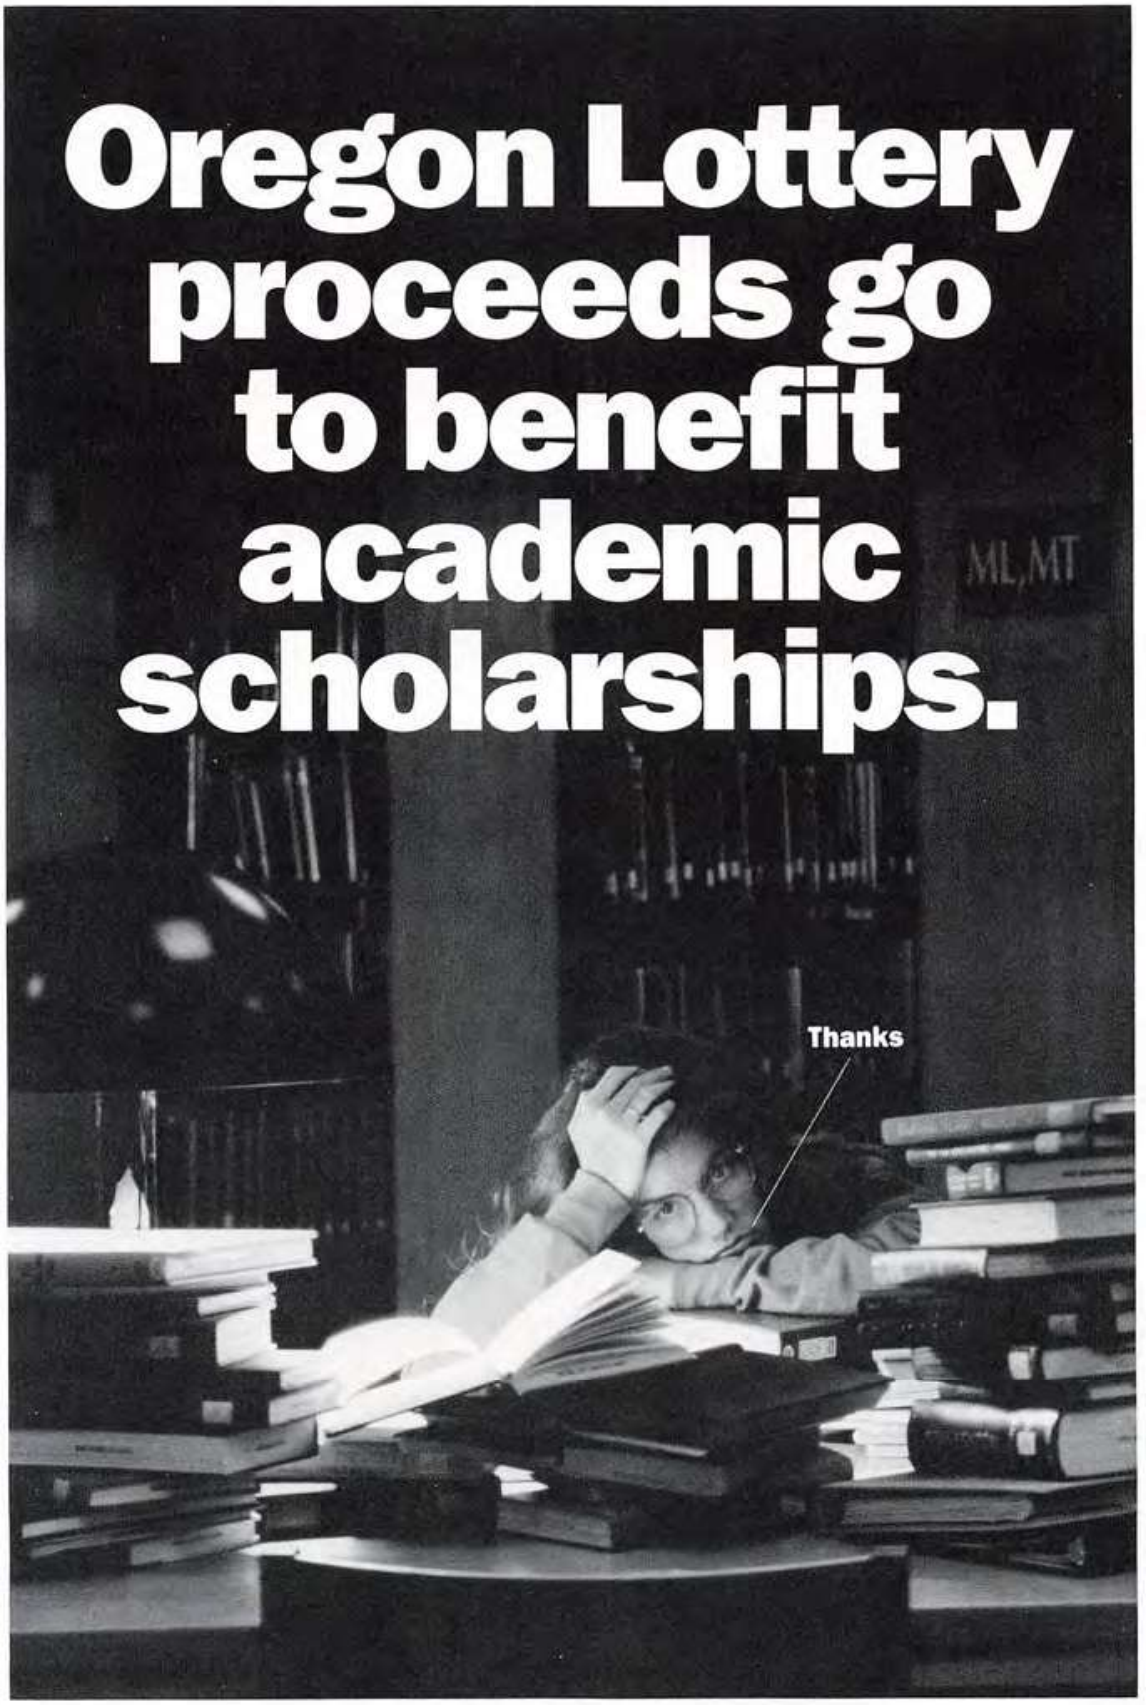
Oregon Lottery proceeds go to benefit academic scholarships.



As long as Oregon scholars in such fields as biology, engineering, chemistry, journalism, geology, medicine, accounting, forestry, sociology, mathematics, economics, fine arts, English, architecture, communications, law, music, anthropology, agriculture, criminal justice and psychology keep cramming, we'll keep writing the checks.

Bold indicates mark achieved during 1992-93 season.

Bill Walton virtually made a career out of rebounding against Golden State. He recorded two 26-rebound games, six games with 20 or more retrieves, ten of 17 or more and was in double figures in that statistics column in 15 of the 16 games he played against the Warriors while in a Blazer uniform. He averaged 17.3 caroms in those 16 games.

DREXLER'S 1992 ALL-STAR SHOWING MVP CALIBER, BUT....

ClydeDrexler's appearance in the 1992 All-Star gamewas a big one. He scored an all-time Blazers high 22 points on a 10-of-15 shooting performance (including 2 of 4 3-pointers), grabbed a team-high 9 rebounds and had 6 assists and 2 blocked shots. He sparked the West to a 153-113 thrashing of the East in the 42nd All-Star classic in Orlando, Fla. Drexler was the starting West guard alongside Magic Johnson and would have had a lock on MVP honors had it not been for an even more sensational performance by Johnson. Returning to the court for the first time since his retirement earlier in the season, Magic scored a game-high 25 points (9 of 12 from the field and 3 of 3 on three pointers) and added 9 assists in 29 minutes.

PORTLAND YEARLY ATTENDANCE

• For the 16th consecutive season, all of Portland's 1992-93 home games—41 during the regular season and two during the playoffs—were sellouts. That raised Portland's record for consecutive homecourt sellouts for regular-season and playoff games to 726, an all-time National Basketball Association record and the longest current streak in all of sports.

• The last time the Blazers failed to sell out a game was on April 5, 1977, when 12,359 turned out for a game with Detroit. The 10 millionth Blazer fan came to Memorial Coliseum on November 27, 1990, to watch Portland play Phoenix.

• In the 23 seasons of the Portland Trail Blazers francise, the team has drawn 10,893,342 fans for 941 regular season games, an average of 11,576 a contest. For 1,009 regular season and playoff games since the franchise began in 1970, the Blazers have drawn 11,764,149 fans for an average of 11,659 a game.

• Portland attracted 714,566 basketball fans to its 41 road games in 1992-93, an average of 17,428 a contest. The road attendance count included crowds of 36,521 and 37,404 for December 18 and March 23 games against the Sonics in Seattle's Kingdome. For the entire 82-game 1992-93 regular season, home and road, attendance was 1,242,974, an average of 15,158.

• In four playoff games in 1993—two at home and two on the road, the Blazers drew 57,890 fans, an average of 14,472 a game. Road attendance for two playoff games totaled 32,114, a 16,057-per-game average.

• Total attendance at all Blazer games for the year, regular season and playoff, home and away, was 1,300,863 for 86 contests, an average of 15,126.

PORTLAND TRADE HISTORY

NOTES TO TRADE HISTORY

1. If a third team is not mentioned in the transaction then assume any draft pick is the choice of the team Portland is trading with or is Portland's choice.
2. If a draft choice acquired in a transaction is subsequently traded by Portland in that original deal, the choice is listed as 'choice traded.' Everywhere else when referring to a draft choice, the player eventually selected by Portland or by the team ultimately receiving the draft choice is shown in parentheses.
3. In trades only what actually happened is given. If a team has several options in a deal only the one it ultimately uses is given.
4. Names in boldface indicate players who actually played for the Blazers.

* Portland paid Cleveland cash to not select Sidney Wicks with its first pick.
 Portland traded second choice (Jim Brewer) to Cleveland in exchange for John Johnson, Rick Roberson and an exchange of draft choices.
 Indiana trades its first choice (Mychal Thompson) to Portland for Johnny Davis and Portland's third choice (Rick Robey).

On July 5, 1983, Portland matched the offer sheet that Calvin Natt had signed with Cleveland. It was the only time, other than the matching of Terry Porter's contract in 1989, that the Blazers needed to exercise their right of first denial to retain a free agent.

After 81 years, we've moved our main office up to a brand new location equipped to better serve our clients.

We're also proud to have served as the offical title company for the $262 million Oregon Arena Project – the largest single real estate transaction in Oregon history!

Four of the six lowest scores ever recorded by Portland playoff opponents came in 1992. The Lakers' notched the lowest ever---76---in the first round series-deciding game on May 3 (losing 102-76). Other lows in 1992 included 79, also by the Lakers, 88 by Utah and 88 by Chicago. Ironically, the all-time playoff high by an opponent, 151, also happened in 1992, that by Phoenix in the Suns' two-overtime 153-151 loss to the Blazers in conference semifinals.

BLAZERS vs. HAWKS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 105, HAWKS 90

at Portland, Feb. 16, 1993 (Game 46, 30-16)

Portland broke a four-game losing streak, its longest since the 1988-89 season, by outscoring the Hawks in every quarter, making nine more field goals and winning the backboard battle, 53-43 . . . Clyde Drexler paced Portland's success with a team-high 29 points, 9 rebounds, 7 assists and 5 steals---the latter giving him a career total of 1,603 and moving him into 8th place on the all-time NBA steals list . . . Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins led all scorers in the game with 31 points . . . Kevin Duckworth grabbed 11 rebounds to lead the Blazers, while Kevin Willis had 13 for the Hawks . . . Portland shot .449 from the field (44-98) and limited Atlanta to a .417 percentage (35-84) . . . The Blazers' bench outscored the Hawks reserves, 38-10, and Portland had a 22-8 advantage in second chance points.

HAWKS 127, BLAZERS 118 (OT)

at Atlanta, March 29, 1993 (Game 67, 41-26)

The Blazers, playing their fourth game in five nights on two sides of the continent, battled back from a 19-point third quarter deficit to send the game into overtime . . . Atlanta posted a 19-10 advantage in the OT for the win . . . It was the second extra session game in five nights for the Blazers and their third in seven outings . . . Cliff Robinson led Portland with 39 points on 18-of-25 shooting before fouling out in the OT session . . . Dominique Wilkins registered a Blazers opponent season-high 48 points to head the Atlanta effort . . . Despite Kevin Willis' 25 rebounds for the Hawks, Portland had a 52-51 edge on the glass, with Clyde Drexler's 11 retrieves leading the way . . . Portland set a team record with 22 3-point attempts and Terry Porter set a new team 3-point attempt standard with12 shots from beyond the circle.

BLAZERS vs. CELTICS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

CELTICS 122, BLAZERS 110

at Boston, March 28, 1993 (Game 51, 32-19)

Boston fired at a 57 percent clip from the field and Portland 46 percent as the Blazers lost for the third time in four tries on an invasion of Eastern Conference territory . . . Six Trail Blazers scored in double figures, led by Clyde Drexler's 22 points, but it wasn't enough to offset strong games by Xavier McDaniel (30 points) and Reggie Lewis (25) for the Celtics . . . Drexler was forced to leave the game at the opening of the fourth quarter with a strained hamstring . . . Boston held only a one point lead, 56-55, at halftime then outscored the Blazers, 66-55, after intermission, including a 9-0 run midway through the fourth quarter . . . Boston, led by Robert Parish's 17 rebounds, claimed a 45-37 advantage on the boards . . . Buck Williams was Portland's leading rebounder with 13 . . . The Blazers were good on 42 of 92 (.456) field goal attempts, and the Celtics converted 48 of 84 (.571).

Portland	28	27	25	30	110

CELTICS 106, BLAZERS 104

at Portland, March 21, 1993 (Game 62, 37-25)

Sherman Douglas' layin with 9.2 seconds remaining gave the Celtics the two-point margin they needed to sweep the season's series with the Trail Blazers . . . Douglas' basket blunted a rally by the injury-riddled Blazers that erased a six-point Boston lead in the game's final five minutes . . . Cliff Robinson's 26 points (11-16 from the field) was high for Portland . . . Reggie Lewis scored a game-high 37, including a Blazer opponents' season-high 17 field goals, to lead the Boston parade . . . Portland connected on .480 of its field goal attempts (36 of 75), while Boston, completing a four-game sweep of games on a Western Conference swing, shot .537 (44 of 82) . . . The Celtics outrebounded Portland, 40-34 . . . Rod Strickland had 10 points and 14 assists for Portland before leaving the game in the fourth quarter with a strained thigh.

BLAZERS 115, CAVALIERS 109

at Portland, Nov. 13, 1992 (Game 3, 3-0)

Kevin Duckworth had a game-high 29 points, including two key baskets in the final minutes of the game, to lead the Blazers to their third straight victory ... Duckworth included a team-high 11 rebounds in his strong performance against the Cavs ... In all, seven Trail Blazers scored in double figures and Portland's four guards—Clyde Drexler, Terry Porter, Rod Strickland and Mario Elie—combined for 29 assists; Clyde led the way with 11 ... Cleveland, playing without its all-star center Brad Daugherty (sore knee), got 25 points from John Williams and 23 from Larry Nance while Mark Price contributed 13 assists. Nance had a game-high 13 rebounds ... Both teams shot well, Portland .522 (47 of 90), while the Cavs were .518 (43 of 83) ... Portland's bench outscored Cleveland's reserves, 38-24 ...It was Portland's sixth straight win over Cleveland and the eighth in a row in Memorial Coliseum.

BLAZERS vs. PISTONS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 115, PISTONS 90

at Portland, Nov. 22, 1992 (Game 7, 7-0)

The Blazers presented Rick Adelman with his 200th career coaching victory while raising their record to 7-0 . . . Adelman, whose record improved to 200-88, reached the 200-win plateau faster than any coach in NBA history to date . . . With the win, Portland kept its 1992-93 record perfect and remained the only undefeated team in the NBA . . . Rod Strickland came off the bench to record the first triple-double of his career and the first for the Blazers this season with 11 points, 10 rebounds and 13 assists . . . Fellow reserve Cliff Robinson was the game's leading scorer with 20 points . . . Joe Dumars led Detroit in scoring with 19 points . . . Portland outscored Detroit on the fast break, 43-10, and took advantage of 25 Pistons turnovers for 33 points, in part because of a season-high 17 steals by the Blazers . . . Portland shot .474 (45-95) from the field while Detroit connected at a .459 clip (39-85) . . . The Blazers won the rebound battle, 47-43.

PISTONS 120, BLAZERS 111

at Detroit, March 31, 1993 (Game 68, 41-27)

Portland, playing its fifth game in seven nights, succumbed to a long-range bombardment by the Detroit Pistons and suffered their second straight road loss . . . Detroit made good on an all-time Blazers opponent record 12 of 25 3-point attempts . . . Joe Dumars, who led all scorers in the game with 38 points, topped the Pistons' long-range attack, hitting 5 of 10 treys . . . Portland lost despite shooting .548 from the field (46-84) while holding Detroit to a .478 chart (43-90), and getting 33 points from Clyde Drexler and 30 from Cliff Robinson . . . The edge came from 3-point range, where the Blazers were good on only 5 of 18, and at the free throw line where Detroit made 22 of 32, compared with Portland's 14 of 20 . . . The Pistons, paced by Dennis Rodman's 17 boards, outrebounded Portland, 44-38 . . . Despite the loss, the Blazers' sixth straight at Detroit, Portland secured a place in the NBA playoffs for the 15th time in 16 years, thanks to Denver's losing to Atlanta.

BLAZERS vs. WARRIORS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 130, WARRIORS 114

at Oakland, Nov. 14, 1992 (Game 4, 4-0)

Terry Porter set an NBA record with a perfect 7-for-7 from 3-point range . . . He also set two other team records and tied his career high with 40 points as he led the Blazers to an emotional come-from-behind victory . . . After the Warriors lead reached 93-82 early in the fourth period, the Blazers recorded a 48-point quarter and won going away . . . Porter was the catalyst, scoring 25 points in the final 8:32 of the game---a Portland team record for one quarter . . . Clyde Drexler had 31 points, a game-high 10 rebounds and 7 assists for the Blazers . . . Chris Mullin topped Golden State with 35 points . . . Portland shot .500 for the game and the Warriors .525 . . . The Blazers, winners of their last four games with the Warriors, won the rebound battle, 49-37.

BLAZERS 130, WARRIORS 114

at Portland, Dec. 20, 1992 (Game 22, 15-7)

Portland duplicated its winning score of 130 points a month earlier in Oakland to notch its fifth straight victory over Golden State . . . Rod Strickland, with 25 points, and Terry Porter, with 23, led the Trail Blazers attack . . . Buck Williams grabbed 8 rebounds to raise his career total to 10,000, making him one of only 20 players in NBA history to have reached the 10,000-point and 10,000-rebound plateau . . . Chris Mullin again led the Warriors, scoring 25 points, and Tyrone Hill had a game-high 13 rebounds as Golden State beat Portland on the boards, 47-40 . . . Portland tallied 32 points off 25 Golden State turnovers . . . Portland led by 17 points after one quarter and was ahead, 70-51, at the half.

BLAZERS 143, WARRIORS 133

at Portland, Jan. 26, 1993 (Game 39, 28-11)

Portland shot 61 percent from the field (50-82), 50 percent from 3-point range (8-16), dished out a season-high equalling 35 assists and made 14 steals enroute to scoring a season-high 143 points . . . Clyde Drexler led the way for Portland, scoring 31 points and handing out 10 assists . . . The Blazers had six players in double figures, and for the second time in as many games, four of them with plus-20 games (Cliff Robinson 26, Terry Porter 25, Rod Strickland 21 and Drexler 31) . . . Golden State, which set a club record by converting 10 of 18 3-point attempts, was led in scoring by Chris Mullin's 31 points and Latrel Sprewell's 27 . . . The Warriors outscored Portland, 74-69, in the first half but the Blazers answered with a 74-59 point advantage in the second half . . . Golden State shot .557 (49-88) for the game . . . The victory was Portland's sixth in a row and its sixth straight over the Warriors.

BLAZERS 113, WARRIORS 96

at Oakland, March 7, 1993 (Game 55, 34-21)

Portland limited Golden State to 13 points in the second quarter and a season-low .391 shooting chart from the field to register a record seventh straight victory over the Warriors . . . Terry Porter topped Portland scorers with 22 points and Rod Strickland contributed 18 points and 14 assists . . . The Blazers were .505 from the field, marking the third time in four games against Golden State they bettered the .500 field goal shooting mark. . . . Victor Alexander scored a career-high 24 points to lead the Warriors, who played without Chris Mullin, Tim Hardaway and Sarunas Marciulionis (all out with injuries) . . . Portland outrebounded the Warriors, 49-48.

BLAZERS vs. ROCKETS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 103, ROCKETS 102 (OT)

at Portland, Jan. 3, 1993 (Game 27, 18-9)

Buck Williams' block of a potential score-tieing dunk by Otis Thorpe as time ran out was the game-saver for Portland and redeemed Buck from the embarrassment of missing four straight free throws in the final 24 seconds of overtime . . . Rod Strickland's steal of a Rockets inbounds pass and resulting breakaway layin with 4.9 seconds remaining in regulation sent the game into OT . . . Houston center Hakeem Olajuwon had a huge game with 40 points, 9 rebounds and 10 blocked shots in 40 minutes . . . Strickland just missed a triple double with a team-high 25 points, 10 assists and 9 rebounds . . . Cliff Robinson topped Portland rebounders with 13 as the Blazers turned in a strong boards effort, outrebounding Houston 59-40, including 29 at the offensive end . . . Portland shot .396 from the field (42 of 106) while the Rockets were .481 (38-79).

BLAZERS 113, ROCKETS 91

at Houston, Jan. 7, 1993 (Game 29, 20-9)

Portland made 63 percent of its shots in the second half and outscored Houston, 71-39, in the game's final 25 minutes to defeat Houston for the second time in five days . . . Cliff Robinson sparked the Blazers big second half and led all scorers in the game with 21 points . . . Houston closed to within 77-74 at the beginning of the fourth quarter but Portland went on a 22-2 run and put the game away . . . Rod Strickland contributed 18 points and a game high 14 assists for the Blazers while Terry Porter also scored 18 and Jerome Kersey and Kevin Duckworth each added 16 . . . Otis Thorpe led the Rockets attack with 19 points . . . Portland had its best shooting night in 14 games, sinking 48 of 90 shots (.533) while Houston was .422 from the field . . . Rebounding was even at 48 apiece . . . The Blazers combined for 32 assists to Houston's 25.

ROCKETS 104, BLAZERS 91

at Houston, March 11, 1993 (Game 57, 35-22)

Houston made 12 straight baskets and scored on 14 straight possessions in the third quarter, turning a 58-53 Blazers lead into an 81-66 advantage, sending the Rockets on the way to their 12th straight victory . . . Center Hakeem Olajuwon had another big outing against Portland with a game-high 27 points, 10 rebounds, 5 assists, 4 steals and 6 blocked shots . . . Rod Strickland was Portland's leader with 18 points and a game-high 11 assists . . . Cliff Robinson had only 4 points in 15 minutes for the Blazers after being slowed by a bruised shin . . . The Blazers shot just .396 (36-91) from the field compared with the Rockets' .440 (37-94) field goal chart . . . Portland, led by Buck Williams' 9 rebounds, won the backboard battle, 50-45 . . . The Trail Blazers were perfect at the free throw line for the first time this season, connecting on all 17 attempts.

BLAZERS 106, ROCKETS 98 (OT)

at Portland, March 19, 1993 (Game 61, 37-24)

Big plays from Jerome Kersey, Terry Porter and Mario Elie down the stretch enabled the Blazers to defeat Houston in overtime for the second time this year . . . Kersey's two free throws with 15.7 seconds in regulation sent the game into overtime . . . A Porter block and a three-point play by Elie in the extra session iced the game for the Blazers . . . the victory gave Portland the season's series with Houston, 3-1, and snapped a Rockets franchise record 15-game winning streak . . . Kersey came off the bench to lead Portland in scoring with 22 points and Mark Bryant had a team-high 11 rebounds to pace the Blazers' to a 50-42 edge on the backboards . . . Hakeem Olajuwon was big for the Rockets, scoring 34 points, grabbing 17 rebounds and blocking 5 shots before fouling out . . . It was the Blazers' fourth straight overtime win, making them 4-1 in extra-session games this season.

BLAZERS vs. PACERS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 112, PACERS 103

at Indianapolis, Dec. 2, 1992 (Game 13, 10-3)

The Trail Blazers bounced back from a poor showing in their loss the night before in New York with a strong second half to beat the Pacers... Cliff Robinson scored a career-high 31 points to lead Portland. He shot 12 of 17 from the field and 7 of 12 from the line and had 8 rebounds in 32 minutes of action... After falling behind 36-21 in the first 12 minutes and 61-51 at intermission, Portland outscored Indiana, 61-42, in the second half... The Blazers had a big 35-point fourth quarter, and finished the game shooting .544 (43-79)... Indiana shot .443 (39-88) from the field... Detlef Schrempf led the Pacers with 26 points... Portland outrebounded Indiana, 45-43...The Trail Blazer bench outscored Indiana's reserves, 58-29.

PACERS 134, BLAZERS 124 (2 OT)

at Portland, Dec. 11, 1992 (Game 18, 12-6)

Two Portland chances to win—one at the end of regulation and the other at the end of the first overtime—were nullified by offensive charging foul calls on Clyde Drexler... The Pacers then outscored Portland, 15-5, in the second OT to get the victory... The loss took the gloss off a 22-rebound effort by Buck Williams, the most for him in a Portland uniform, and a 28-point performance by Terry Porter that included 5 of 7 from 3-point range... Cliff Robinson scored 22 of his 24 points after intermission before fouling out... Indiana's Detlef Schrempf led all scorers with a near triple-double: 32 points, 10 assists and 9 rebounds... Reggie Miller scored 28 for the Pacers... Indiana's 134 points were the most ever by the Pacers versus Portland.

BLAZERS vs. HEAT -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 104, HEAT 93 (OT)

at Portland, Jan. 14, 1993 (Game 32, 22-10)

The Trail Blazers registered their third overtime victory in four tries this season and in the process ran their league-best record against the four newest NBA teams to 40-1 . . . Terry Porter had a big hand in the win, scoring 32 points on a performance that included a 5-for-9 night from 3-point territory and an 11-for-11 ace at the foul line . . . The Blazers won despite shooting a meager .367 from the field (36-98) and being outrebounded 53-47 . . . Portland balanced its off shooting night with a 27-for-28 free throw effort . . . Miami registered a .413 shooting mark (38-92) and was 15 of 19 at the line . . . Rookie guard Harold Miner, with a team-high 20 points, and Brian Shaw, with 14 points and 12 assists, were key players in helping the Heat battle back and force the overtime, a first for the Blazers-Heat series . . . Miami's bench outscored the Portland reserves, 60-31 . . . The Blazers upped their record to 11-0 against Miami.

HEAT 102, BLAZERS 91

at Miami, Feb. 24, 1993 (Game 49, 31-18)

The Miami Heat registered their first win ever over the Trail Blazers, breaking an 11-game Portland streak dating back to the series inaugural in 1988 . . . Portland made only four field goals and shot only 22 percent in the second quarter, scoring a season low 14 points for the period that allowed Miami to take a 51-35 lead at halftime . . . Portland shot only .376 for the game (35-93) compared with the Heat's .410 mark (32-78) . . . Miami made 34 of 41 free throws while Portland converted 18 of 24 . . . Clyde Drexler led the Blazers in the points column with 20 and Rod Strickland added 18 as only four Portland players contributed double-figure scoring . . . Miami's Glen Rice and Rony Seikaly tied for high-game scoring honors with 24 points apiece . . . Steve Smith had a career high 11 rebounds as the Heat captured a 54-50 edge on the glass . . . Drexler and Terry Porter each had 9 rebounds to lead Portland.

at Milwaukee, Jan. 19, 1993 (Game 35, 24-11)

Portland beat the Milwaukee Bucks for the fifth straight time . . . The 27-point margin of victory was just two shy of the Blazers' largest of the season earlier in the year against the Bucks in Portland . . . The Trail Blazers outscored Milwaukee, 65-39, in the middle two periods and led by as many as 33 in the second half . . . Clyde Drexler led all scorers with 21 points, 15 of them in the first quarter, and Terry Porter and Cliff Robinson chipped in with 20 apiece as all 12 Blazers participated in the scoring avalanche. . . Portland shot .522 from the floor (48-92) and outrebounded the Bucks, 47-38, with Drexler taking a game-high 10 off the boards . . . Todd Day was Milwaukee's top point producer with 16 as the Bucks were held to a .429 shot chart (36-84) . . . The Blazers tallied 29 points off 22 Bucks turnovers . . . It was Portland's second straight win in Milwaukee after losing 14 of its previous 15 games on the Bucks' court.

BLAZERS vs. KNICKS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 109, KNICKS 94

at Portland, Nov. 16, 1992 (Game 5, 5-0)

The Portland bench outscored the New York reserves, 52-25, and outrebounded them, 19-6, as the Blazers won their fifth straight game and remained the only unbeaten team in the NBA... Cliff Robinson led the Portland bench attack with a team-high 21 points on a 9-for-21 shooting night . . . Portland's reserves finished with a .594 shooting mark from the field, connecting on 19 of 32 . . . The Knicks' bench was 9 for 21 (.329)... For the game, Portland shot .526 (40 of 76), and New York .494 (39 of 79) . . . Clyde Drexler was one assist away from a triple-double, recording 13 points, a game-high 10 rebounds and 9 assists . . . Knicks center Patrick Ewing led all scorers with 28 points . . . Portland outrebounded the Knicks, 43-28.

KNICKS 101, BLAZERS 85

at New York, Dec. 1, 1992 (Game 12, 9-3)

Portland scored season lows of 85 points for the game and 30 points in the first half and had just 28 field goals for the game—just one off its all-time low . . . Other season lows: a .346 field goal shooting percentage (28 of 81) and an .083 3-point percentage (1 of 12) . . . Portland's misfiring allowed New York to take a 47-30 lead to the locker room at halftime, and a 19-point advantage, 73-54, into the final period . . . Kevin Duckworth led the Blazers in scoring with 18 points while John Starks paced the Knicks with 15... The New York bench outscored Portland's reserves, 58-29, and the Knicks had a 59-49 rebounding advantage over the Blazers... Buck Williams was Portland's top rebounder with 9; Patrick Ewing had 10 boards for New York.

BLAZERS vs. MAGIC -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

MAGIC 114, BLAZERS 106

at Portland, Feb. 5, 1993 (Game 42, 28-14)

Orlando outscored Portland, 27-18, over the final 7:35 of the contest to register its first ever win over the Blazers... It was Portland's second straight homecourt loss, the first time that had happened in four years... Portland shot just .419 (44-105) from the field, compared with the Magic's .539 field goal mark (41-76)... Orlando hit 6 of 11 3-pointers and was 26-31 from the foul line (.839)... The Blazers, who took 68 of their season-high 105 shots from inside 10 feet, were just 14 of 19 from the line... Led by Clyde Drexler's 12 rebounds and Buck Williams' 10, Portland beat Orlando to the boards, 48-37... Drexler led all scorers in the game with 32 points while Nick Anderson, who was 5 of 7 from 3-point range, topped the Magic with 27 points... Shaquille O'Neal had 22 points, 11 rebounds and 3 blocked shots in his first test against Portland... Portland extended its losing streak to three games for the first time in 119 outings.

MAGIC 125, BLAZERS 107

at Orlando, Feb. 23, 1993 (Game 48, 31-17)

The Magic shot a team-record 62 percent from the field (46-74) for the game and went on to defeat Portland for the second time this year, giving Orlando the first series sweep ever over Portland by one of the league's four newest teams. Portland had won all eight previous games... Included in the torrid Magic shooting show was an 82 percent effort in the fourth quarter... Orlando outscored the Trail Blazers, 46-22, in the third period to blow the game open... The 46 points was one shy of an opponent record for the fourth quarter against the Blazers... Cliff Robinson led Portland scorers with 23 points as the Blazers shot .467 (43-92) from the field... Shaquille O'Neal was high scorer for the game with 28 points (9-12 field goals and 10-16 free throws) and had 14 rebounds and 5 blocked shots... the Blazers had a 37-35 edge in rebounding and outscored the Magic, 44-42, in the paint.

BLAZERS vs. SUNS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 100, SUNS 89

at Portland, Nov. 10, 1992 (Game 2, 2-0)

Mario Elie scored 13 of his team-high 17 points in the fourth period and Rod Strickland had 8 of his 10 points in the last stanza as Portland rallied from a 69-67 deficit after three quarters . . . Seven of the nine Blazers who saw action in the game scored in double figures . . . Portland's bench outscored its Phoenix counterparts, 45-23, and the Blazers turned 18 Suns turnovers into 26 points while Phoenix managed only 9 points off 8 Portland miscues . . . Portland outrebounded the Suns, 47-37, and had a 21-9 advantage on second-chance points . . . Charles Barkley paced the Suns with a game-high 21 points and 14 rebounds . . . Terry Porter just missed a triple-double with 16 points, 10 assists and 8 rebounds . . . Portland shot .435 (40-92) from the field and Phoenix .429 (33-77).

SUNS 121, BLAZERS 117

at Phoenix, Nov. 25, 1992 (Game 9, 8-1)

The Trail Blazers suffered their first setback of the season after eight straight victories, losing to the same team that snapped Portland's record 11-game winning streak at the start of the 1990-91 season . . . It was the Blazers' first outing in the Suns' new America West Arena . . . Charles Barkley led the way for the Suns with 33 points, a game-high 18 rebounds, and 6 assists . . . Tom Chambers tallied 25 for Phoenix . . . Clyde Drexler was the leading scorer in the game with 36 points and Jerome Kersey registered 23 for the Blazers . . . Phoenix was on the board with a .529 shooting chart (45-85) while Portland recorded a .488 field goal mark (42-86) . . . Phoenix controlled the backboards, 47-40.

BLAZERS 102, SUNS 97

at Portland, March 2, 1993 (Game 52, 33-19)

An inspired Portland defense put the clamps on the NBA's most productive offense, allowing only 63 points in the final three quarters . . . Buck Williams was the Blazers' chief stopper, helping limit Suns' star Charles Barkley to 20 points . . . Terry Porter led all scorers in the game with 26 points . . . Cliff Robinson added 22 for the Blazers and Rod Strickland chipped in with 15 points and 7 assists . . . Dan Majerle's 20 matched Barkley's team-high mark for the Suns . . . With Williams leading the way with 12 rebounds, Portland had control of the glass, 47-40 . . . The Trail Blazers shot .453 (39-86) from the floor and the Suns .466 (41-88) . . . Portland produced 19 points from 16 Phoenix turnovers while the Suns were able to get only 8 points from 13 Blazers' TOs . . . Portland played without Clyde Drexler, who was placed on the injured list with a strained hamstring.

SUNS 129, BLAZERS 111

at Phoenix, March 17, 1993 (Game 60, 36-24)

Phoenix outrebounded Portland, 64-34, including 21 offensive boards, and had 33-20 a margin in second-chance points as the Blazers suffered their third straight road loss, the longest such stetch in two seasons . . . Phoenix led from the start and had a 20-point advantage, 69-49 at intermission . . . Terry Porter was the only Blazers starter in double figures, scoring a team-high 22 points . . . Cedric Ceballos and Tom Chambers shared game-high honors with 24 points each and Ceballos led the strong Suns' rebounding effort with a career high 14 boards . . . Portland shot .447 (42-94) from the field and the Suns .439 (44-90) . . . Phoenix converted 39 of 48 free throws while Portland was 26-36 at the line.

SUNS 115, BLAZERS 114

at Portland, April 22, 1993 (Game 80, 50-30)

Charles Barkley's controversial field goal after an inbounds pass from midcourt with a half-second remaining gave the Suns the victory and the season series, 3-2 . . . Phoenix had taken the lead, 113-112, on a three-point play by Tom Chambers with 3.5 seconds to go, but Cliff Robinson's jumper with 0.5 on the clock put the Blazers back on top, 114-113 . . . The Suns immediately called timeout, setting up the pass that carommed off the backboard into Barkley's hands . . . Terry Porter led Portland with 24 points as all eight Blazers to see action scored in double figures . . . Barkley was high for the game with 29 points . . . Portland posted a .506 shooting percentage (43-85), and the Suns .522 (48-92) . . . Phoenix had a 44-43 rebound edge.

BLAZERS vs. KINGS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 104, KINGS 99

at Sacramento, Nov. 20, 1992 (Game 6, 6-0)

Portland built a 48-39 halftime lead then held on down the stretch to get its second road victory in as many tries and claim its sixth win without a loss . . . It was also the Blazers' seventh straight success over the Kings . . . Cliff Robinson, for the second game in a row, came off the bench to top Portland scorers with 21 points. Robinson was 9 for 12 from the field in 28 minutes before fouling out late in the game . . . seven of the nine Blazers seeing action scored in double figures . . . Portland shot .482 (40 of 83) from the floor while limiting the Kings to a .337 (31 of 92) field goal mark . . . Sacramento's Wayman Tisdale topped all scorers with 23 points and Kings forward Lionel Simmons had 14 rebounds as Sacramento won the boards battle, 50-47 . . . Jerome Kersey was Portland's leading rebounder with 11.

BLAZERS 107, KINGS 99

at Portland, Nov. 29, 1992 (Game 11, 9-2)

Sacramento built a 10-point lead, 37-27, midway through the second quarter but couldn't hold it as Portland won its eighth straight over the Kings, equalling its longest victory streak over the Kings . . . The Trail Blazers shot just .416 for the game (37 of 89) while the Kings were .415 (39 of 94) . . . Portland had a better time at the free throw line, connecting on 32 of 42 (.762), while Sacramento was 20 of 23 (.870) at the charity stripe . . . Portland, led by Cliff Robinson's career high 13 rebounds, beat the Kings on the glass, 52-39 . . . Clyde Drexler led six Blazers in double figure scoring with 24 points . . . Forward Lionel Simmons scored 16 of his game-high 29 points in the first half to pace the Kings.

BLAZERS 135, KINGS 127

at Portland, Jan. 22, 1993 (Game 37, 26-11)

The Trail Blazers, racing to a 41-35 first quarter lead and had a 74-63 margin at intermission, the 74 points being a Portland first half season high . . . Terry Porter and Cliff Robinson each had 27 points, Clyde Drexler scored 23 and three other Blazers finished in double figures as Portland finished the game with a .568 shooting percentage (50-88) . . . The Kings, .456 from the floor (47-103), pulled to within 120-117, with 4:54 left in the game before Porter scored six straight, including a 3-pointer, gave Portland breathing room . . . Mitch Richmond paced Sacramento with 27 points . . . Anthony Bonner claimed 14 rebounds as the Kings took a 43-42 edge on the boards . . . The combined 262 points was the most ever in the series . . . It was the Blazers' 18th straight win over the Kings in Portland.

BLAZERS 113, KINGS 111 (OT)

at Sacramento, March 25, 1993 (Game 64, 39-25)

Rod Strickland and Cliff Robinson were the Trail Blazers heroes as Portland upped its season's record in overtime games to 5-1 . . . Strickland's rebound and basket with 2 seconds remaining sent the game into OT . . . Robinson's bank shot at the 2.5 second mark of the extra period sealed the win for the Blazers, who did not lead in the game until the overtime and were down by as much as 17 points in the second half . . . Robinson's 26 points and Strickland's 23 topped Portland while Kings forward Walt Williams led all scorers with 35 counters . . . The Blazers shot .471 (40-85) from the floor but made things hard on themselves by missing 16 of 46 free throw attempts . . . The Kings had a .404 field goal mark (38-94) . . . Robinson and Buck Williams had 10 boards each to help Portland to a 49-48 rebound edge.

BLAZERS 112, KINGS 108

at Sacramento, April 23, 1993 (Game 81, 51-30)

Cliff Robinson scored five straight points in the final minute and Rod Strickland made 3 of 4 free throws in the last 7 seconds as Portland swept its series with Sacramento for the second year in a row and ran its winning streak over the Kings to 11 games . . . The Blazers' 66 rebounds—30 of them off the offensive glass—was a season high, an ARCO Arena record and 17 more than the Kings' total . . . Buck Williams had 10 rebounds in 17 minutes of play and Jerome Kersey 10 in 22 minutes as the Portland bench saw extended minutes . . . Strickland topped the Blazers in scoring with 24 points, including a career high 14 free throws on 18 attempts . . . Blazer Dave Johnson's 13 points was a career high as was the game-high total of 27 by the Kings' Randy Brown . . . Portland made 38 of 106 field goal attempts (.358) while Sacramento converted 43 of 91 (.471).

BLAZERS vs. SPURS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 95, SPURS 91

at Portland, November 24, 1992 (Game 8, 8-0)

Clyde Drexler's jumper with 3:33 remaining in the third quarter raised his career scoring total to 15,001, making him the 62nd player in NBA history to top the 15,000 point mark . . . Drexler ended the evening with 24 points, equaling the output of San Antonio's Antoine Carr . . . The Blazers, trailing by one, 48-47, at the half, outscored the Spurs, 29-17, in the third quarter, then held on for the victory . . . Lloyd Daniels miss of a wide-open layin attempt with 18 seconds remaining and his team down, 93-91, was a huge play in the game . . . Buck Williams' rebound and two free throws by Terry Porter with 8 seconds on the clock helped push Portland's record to 8-0 . . . Portland shot .421 (40-95) from the field and the Spurs .435 (37-85) . . . The Blazers outrebounded San Antonio, 51-41, despite 14 boards by the Spurs' David Robinson. Williams had 10 for Portland.

SPURS 109, BLAZERS 93

at San Antonio, January 9, 1993 (Game 30, 20-10)

San Antonio outscored Portland, 88-68, after the first quarter and went on to register the victory, breaking a three-game Blazers win streak . . . The loss dashed Portland's hopes of being only the fourth NBA team to sweep the three-game set on the road swing against Texas teams . . . The Trail Blazers were within five, 50-45, at intermission but were outscored by the Spurs, 31-23, in the third quarter . . . David Robinson tallied a game-high 32 points, captured 10 rebounds and blocked 6 shots to pace the Spurs' effort . . . Rod Strickland was the high scorer for Portland with 20 points . . . Portland managed only a .379 shooting chart from the field (33 of 87) while San Antonio connected at a .471 clip (41 of 87) . . . San Antonio had a 48-45 edge on the backboards . . . Buck Williams was Portland's top rebounder with 9.

at San Antonio, March 13, 1993 (Game 58, 35-23)

Portland, down 78-61 late in the third quarter, battled back with an 11-0 run but could get no closer than 4 in the final quarter and lost its fifth straight in the HemisFair . . . Cliff Robinson led all scorers in the game with 28 points and shared Blazers' rebound honors with Buck Williams with 10 . . . Terry Porter added 26 points to the Portland total, including a four-point play, the 10th in franchise history and the second this season . . . David Robinson had another big game against the Blazers, tallying 24 points to go with 19 rebounds and 4 blocked shots . . . Antoine Carr scored a season-high 27 for the Spurs . . . Portland fired at a .448 (39 of 87) clip from the field while the Spurs were .512 (44 of 86) . . . San Antonio outrebounded the Blazers, 42-39 . . . The win improved the Spurs' record since John Lucas was named head coach to 18-2.

BLAZERS 105, SPURS 101

at Portland, April 18, 1993 (Game 78, 49-29)

Portland upped its lead over San Antonio to two games in the race for the fourth spot and first-round homecourt advantage in the Western Conference playoffs with the victory in the nationally-televised game (NBC-TV) . . . At the same time, the Blazers earned a split in their season's series with the Spurs . . . Rod Strickland burned his former teammates with 25 points, equaling his season high, and Jerome Kersey captured a season-high 16 rebounds as the Blazers outrebounded the Spurs, 49-39, including a 15-7 edge in the fourth period . . . Spurs center David Robinson led all scorers with 29 points but had only 2 points and 1 rebound in the final quarter . . . Portland shot .418 (38-91) and San Antonio .461 (35-76) from the field . . . Clyde Drexler left the game after 7 minutes due to soreness from a hamstring injury.

BLAZERS vs. SUPERSONICS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

SONICS 126, BLAZERS 109

at Seattle, Dec. 18, 1992 (Game 21, 14-7)

Led by Shawn Kemp and Michael Cage, the SuperSonics outrebounded the Trail Blazers, 54-31, in the Seattle victory before 36,521 in the Kingdome . . . Kemp had a game-high 25 points and 10 boards and Cage 12 rebounds . . . The Sonics rebound count included a 24-9 advantage off the offensive glass . . . Portland, trailing from the outset, pulled to within two, 65-63, with seven minutes remaining in the third quarter . . . Eddie Johnson scored 16 of his 22 points in the second half to spark the Sonics late surge . . . Rod Strickland, who scored 23 points on a 9-of-13 shooting night, was the Blazers' top point producer . . . Seattle shot .495 (49 of 99) from the field while the Blazers were 36 of 77 (.468) . . . Nate McMillan added 15 assists for the Sonics . . . Portland played without Jerome Kersey (tendenitis, left knee) .

SONICS 107, BLAZERS 96

at Portland, Dec. 22, 1992 (Game 23, 15-8)

After trailing by as many as 20 points in the third quarter, Portland staged a 20-2 run and pulled to within three, 99-96, with 1:17 remaining. But the Sonics scored the final 8 points of the game, to win in Memorial Coliseum for the first time in eight tries . . . It was the first time Seattle had taken two straight from the Blazers since the 1988-89 season . . . Derrick McKey's 26 points led the Sonics, who shot .520 from the field, (39-75) . . . Portland's Cliff Robinson scored a game-high 28 points and claimed a career-high 16 rebounds . . . Portland converted on 38 of 93 field goal attempts (.409) . . . Seattle's Michael Cage had 17 rebounds but the Blazers had an edge on the boards, 41-39 . . . . The Sonics victory trimmed the series edge by Portland to one game, 64-63.

BLAZERS 109, SONICS 97

at Portland, Jan. 17, 1993 (Game 34, 23-11)

An aggressive Blazers defense sparked by Buck Williams' effort on Sonics forward Shawn Kemp helped Portland break a two-game Seattle win streak . . . Kemp tallied just 6 points in 27 minutes before fouling out late in the fourth quarter . . . The Blazers' offense, led by Clyde Drexler and Cliff Robinson, outscored the Sonics, 34-21, in the second quarter to take a 58-43 intermission lead . . . Drexler finished with a game-high 24 points and Cliff Robinson had 23 . . . Ricky Pierce and Derrick McKey each had 20 points for Seattle . . . With Buck Williams leading the way on the boards with 9, including 5 at the offensive end, the Blazers outrebounded Seattle, 39-35 . . . Portland shot .513 (41-80) from the floor, while Seattle charted a .453 field goal mark (39-86) . . . six technicals were called in the game, four against Seattle.

SONICS 108, BLAZERS 86

at Seattle, Jan. 30, 1993 (Game 40, 28-12)

The Trail Blazers, shooting just .363 (33 of 91) from the field and getting outrebounded 53-39, dropped their third game in four tries against the SuperSonics and in so doing, lost the season series for the first time since the 1988-89 season . . . Portland, scoring a season-low 13 points in the opening quarter, trailed 45-33 at halftime and never recovered . . . Clyde Drexler led Portland scorers with 14 points and Rod Strickland was next with 13 but the two guards combined to make just 8 of 33 shots from the field . . . Eddie Johnson was high scorer for the Sonics with 20 points as Seattle made 43 of 90 shots for a .479 percentage . . . Shawn Kemp grabbed 16 rebounds and Michael Cage 12 to lead Seattle's domination of the backboards . . . Buck Williams led Portland rebounders with 12.

BLAZERS 108, SONICS 99

at Seattle, Mar. 23, 1993 (Game 63, 38-25)

Playing without injured regulars Clyde Drexler, Rod Strickland and Kevin Duckworth, Portland registered an emotional win before a noisy Kingdome crowd of 37,401 . . . Terry Porter had the hot hand for the Trail Blazers, scoring 36 points in 37 minutes of play (9-18 field goals including 4-6 treys, and 14-16 free throws), plus 9 assists and 7 rebounds . . . Portland, outrebounded badly in the previous Seattle game, had a 39-33 advantage this time, led by Jerome Kersey's game-high 9 boards . . . Ricky Pierce topped Sonics scorers with 24 points . . . Little-used Delaney Rudd started at point guard for Portland and responded with 6 assists and only 2 turnovers in 30 minutes . . . The Blazers shot .507 (36-71) while the Sonics had a .475 (38-80) percentage from the floor.

BLAZERS vs. JAZZ -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

JAZZ 110, BLAZERS 102

at Portland, Jan. 2, 1993 (Game 26, 17-9)

Utah broke a 12-game Trail Blazers win streak in Memorial Coliseum—six regular-season and six playoff games . . . The Jazz shot 65 percent in the first half to build a 63-49 intermission lead then held off Portland down the stretch . . . Kevin Duckworth's season-high 27 points led the Blazers effort . . . Terry Porter, who had 25 points, tied his own team three-point field goals made record set earlier in the year, converting 7 of 11 . . . Rod Strickland scored 23 for the Blazers . . . Karl Malone of the Jazz led all scorers with 29 points and Utah guard Jeff Malone added 21. . . Buck Williams grabbed 13 rebounds as Portland took a 51-44 advantage on the boards . . . Portland charted a .387 (36-93) field goal mark while Utah finished shooting .506 (42-83) . . . The Blazers were only .622 (23-37) from the line, compared with Utah's .806 (25-31) free throw mark.

BLAZERS 124, JAZZ 113

at Salt Lake City, Jan. 24, 1993 (Game 38, 27-11)

Portland outscored Utah 78-60 in the second half and benefited from four 20 point-plus performances to whip the Jazz in a nationally televised game (NBC) . . . The big second half included a 41-32 advantage in the fourth quarter . . . The Jazz rallied to within four, 95-91, with eight minutes remaining before the Blazers responded with a 33-18 run down the stretch to secure the victory . . . Clyde Drexler paced Portland with 28 points, while teammates Kevin Duckworth, Cliff Robinson and Terry Porter added 22, 21 and 20 points respectively . . . Utah's Karl Malone was high for the game with 42 points (15-25 FGs, 12-17 FTs) and 12 rebounds . . . Blazers shot .558 (48-86) from the field while limiting the Jazz to a .424 (42-85) chart . . . Utah had a 42-36 rebound advantage . . It was just the third Portland win in 22 games in Utah.

BLAZERS 110, JAZZ 95

at Portland, April 6, 1993 (Game 71, 43-28)

The Trail Blazers made it two straight over the Jazz and seven out of the last eight in Memorial Coliseum . . . The win opened a two-game spread for Portland over Utah in the Western Conference race for fourth position in the playoffs . . . Terry Porter was the main gun in a Portland offense that saw 11 of the 12 players logging minutes get on the scoreboard . . . Porter tallied 25 points (9-15 field goals, 3-5 three-pointers), handed out 8 assists and made 3 steals . . . Karl Malone again led the Jazz, scoring 25 points on 11-16 shooting but took only two shots in the fourth quarter; he had 10 rebounds but none off the offensive glass . . . Jerome Kersey was the game's leading rebounder with 12 and Portland controlled the boards, 48-42 . . . The Blazers connected on 42 of 90 shots (.467), while the Jazz converted 35 of 82 (.427).

JAZZ 122, BLAZERS117 (OT)

at Salt Lake City, April 15, 1993 (Game 76, 47-29)

A career-high 40-point effort by Cliff Robinson had some of the luster taken from it when Utah outscored Portland, 17-12, in overtime to earn the Jazz a split in the season's series between the two teams . . . It was Portland's eighth overtime game of the season (5 wins, 3 losses), the most ever in a season for the Blazers . . . 11 of Utah's points in the OT came at the free throw line . . . The loss also kept the Blazers from their sixth straight win . . . Robinson's 40 points came on 13-25 from the field and 13-14 from the line . . . Karl Malone led Utah with 38 points . . . The Jazz outrebounded the short-handed Blazers (missing both Jerome Kersey and Clyde Drexler), 50-38 . . . Karl Malone grabbed 11 misses for high game honors . . . Robinson led Portland rebounders with 7 . . . The Trail Blazers shot .488 from the field (42-86) and the Jazz .479 (45-94).

BLAZERS vs. BULLETS -- 1992-93 Game-by-Game

BLAZERS 117, BULLETS98

at Portland, Dec. 13, 1992 (Game 19, 13-6)

Cliff Robinson bettered his career high for the third time in 12 games by scoring 32 points . . . Portland outscored the Bullets, 65-37, in the second half to claim the victory, overcoming a 15-point third quarter deficit . . . Robinson scored his 32 points without the benifit of attempting a free throw or getting an offensive rebound in 37 minutes—he was 16-21 from the field . . . Washington's Harvey Grant also recorded a career high, scoring 37 points, 24 of them coming in the first half . . . Portland outrebounded the Bullets, 47-31, with Robinson's 11 boards leading the way . . . The Blazers shot .484 (45-93) from the floor, and the Bullets .500 (42-84) . . . Portland's bench had a huge 71-18 advantage over its counterparts on the Bullets side . . . 19 Washington turnovers resulted in 30 Portland points . . . It was the Trail Blazers' sixth straight victory over the Bullets and their 10th win in the last 12 meetings.

BULLETS 114, BLAZERS 102

at Washington, April 2, 1993 (Game 70, 42-28)

Clyde Drexler scored 9 points in the first 8 minutes of the game but then was forced to leave with a strained left hamstring . . . He did not return and the Bullets went on to break a six-game Blazers win streak . . . The Blazers, led by Buck Williams' 19 rebounds, had a huge 51-31 rebound advantage over the Bullets, but shot just .451 (41-91) while allowing Washington to connect at a .524 rate (44-84) . . . Cliff Robinson was high point producer for the game with 24 but only two other Blazers managed double-digit scoring for the game . . . Rookie center Tom Gugliotta paced Washington with 21 points . . . After battling back from an 11-point second quarter deficit to take a 56-56 tie to the locker room at intermission, Portland was outscored in the second half, 58-46 . . . The loss put a 2-3 finish to the Trail Blazers' longest road trip of the season that had them playing five games in eight nights.

THE FIRST "AUTOMOBILE OF THE YEAR" WITH AN AVAILABLE INTEGRATED CHILD SAFETY SEAT.

INTREPID

It's no wonder the editors of AUTOMOBILE MAGAZINE named the Dodge Intrepid their 1993 "Automobile of the Year." Just consider Intrepid's combination of style and safety features:

- By moving the wheels toward the corners, Intrepid offers greater stability and a roomier interior.
- Driver- and passenger-side airbags come standard.
- Available integrated child safety seat. It's built right into the backseat to disappear when not in use.
- To help you avoid accidents, available anti-lock brakes that enable you to steer without locking the brakes.
- Available traction control to improve acceleration on slippery roads.

A GUIDE TO NBA PERSONNEL PROCEDURES

ACTIVE LIST: A team must carry a minimum of 11, and no more than 12, players on its active roster. At no time shall a team be permitted to dress fewer than eight players for a regular season game or nine for a playoff game. During the offseason and training camp, teams may carry no more than 20 active players.

INJURED LIST: Any player placed on the injured list due to injury or illness must sit out at least five of his team's regular-season games before he may be restored to the active list. For players injured near the end of the season, the rule is to mean the players must sit out five games or as many games as remain in the regular season.

TRADING DEADLINE: No trades or sales among teams are permitted after 9:00 PM Eastern time, February 24. From that point to the end of the regular season, player additions can be made through the waiver procedure or by acquiring free agents.

WAIVERS: From August 15 to the end of the regular season, clubs may claim waived players within 48 hours after notice. Players waived at any other time may be claimed within 10 days. If no teams claim the waived player he becomes a free agent. If more than one club claims a waived player, the team with the lesser record at that time claims the player. The waiver price shall be $1,000 per player payable to the League Office.

TEN-DAY CONTRACT: On or after the 55th day following the season's first game, a team may sign a player to a 10-day contract solely for the purpose of replacing an injured player. No player may be signed to more than two 10-day agreements by a single team in the same season.

GUARANTEED CONTRACT DATE: On the 56th day of the regular season all player contracts become guaranteed for the remainder of the season.

AMATEUR ELIGIBILITY RENUNCIATION: A player whose high school class has graduated shall become eligible for the college draft if he renounces his intercollegiate basketball eligibility by written notice to the NBA at least 45 days prior to the draft. Prior to 45 days before the draft, teams may not make direct or indirect contact with players who have eligibility left. Clubs may contact players without remaining eligibility but may not discuss compensation.

TRADING OF FIRST ROUND DRAFT CHOICES: No team may sell or trade its right to select a player in the first round of the college draft if the result of such an exchange would be to leave the club without first-round picks in any two consecutive college drafts.

PRE-DRAFT CAMPS: Prior to the college draft, teams are prohibited from conducting so-called "mini-camps" for prospective players eligible for the draft.

The NBA Cares .....

The NBA, its teams, players and coaches share a commitment to supporting an improving the quality of life in their communities. On the national and local levels, the NBA and its 27 teams are involved in many public service initiatives.

Since 1989, the NBA and the National Basketball Players Association have worked together to address the drop-out crisis through the NBA Stay in School program. Created to urge students to graduate from high school, the program uses importance of attitude, attendance and achievement in school to encourage young people to develop pride and self esteem. NBA Hall of Famer Bob Lanier serves as National Chairman of the NBA Stay in School program.

Through public service announcements on TV and radio and other awareness-building programs, the NBA and its players also support the work of the Special Olympics, CARE, the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse, and Operation Prom/Graduation, a program that encourages an alcohol-free prom and graduation season. The NBA creates PSA programs in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., in January, and Black History Month each February, and has produced PSAs on behalf of the Tetinitis Pigmentosa Foundation to fight blindness. The league and its teams also address the importance of early detection in the treatment of breast cancer in the "NBA Wives Save Lives" program.

BILL SCHONELY

"Good evening basketball fans, wherever you may be. . ." With that statement Bill Schonely is doing what he does best, and what few others do nearly as well. For 23 years and 2,102 games, he's been bringing Trail Blazer basketball to radio and television fans from California north to Alaska. Only the Lakers' Chick Hearn (32 years) has been with his team longer than Schonely.

This is Schonely's second season delivering play-by-play to the team's television viewers. He handles the chores for all of the Blazer Cable games, as well as the road games carried on KGW, Channel 8. Schonely's television sidekick is Steve Jones, who served alongside him from 1979-81.

Schonely's voice is perhaps the most recognizable in Oregon, as well as throughout the NBA. Schonz, as he's known to many, called his 2,000th Blazer game January 24, 1992, a 125-117 Blazer victory over Atlanta. With experience has come a reputation as one of the best play-by-play men in the business. He's also become a national commodity as narrator of the NBA promotional spots that cover the country's television markets.

A native of Norristown, Penn., Schonely served in the U.S. Marine Corps before settling in Seattle where he worked as sports director of KVI radio for seven years. He served as the voice of the Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League (and would later work for the NHL's Oakland Seals), University of Washington football, and Seattle Angels and Seattle Pilots baseball teams. The Pilots departed after just one season and the newly-created Portland Trail Blazers of the NBA came calling in search of their first announcer.

Schonely is very visible in the Portland community regularly lending his support to many charitable causes, such as those sponsored by The American Heart Association, Doernbecher and the Kidney Association of Oregon. Bill and his wife, Dottie, reside in Lake Oswego.

STEVE JONES

One of the up-and-coming talents in the new era of the NBA on NBC, Steve Jones is certainly no stranger to Trail Blazer fans, or, for that matter, to NBA fans across the country. Jones is in his 11th year sitting courtside as analyst for the Blazer games broadcast by Blazer Cable and KGW Channel 8.

While honing his talents with Blazer Broadcasting since the 1976-77 season, Jones has become very visible on the national scene the last six years. He served three years with TNT and TBS before joining the NBC team when the network obtained the NBA's television rights prior to the 1990-91 season. Jones served as basketball analyst with Chick Hearn and Jim Durham in Barcelona, Spain as part of the NBC production of men's basketball during the 1992 Olympic Games. In that capacity he worked the equivalent of almost one-half of an NBA season, 36 games, in just two weeks.

Jones' broadcasting career began in 1976 (the season after he retired as a player with the Trail Blazers), when he became a color commentator for CBS. He was part of the network's announcing crew that handled the Blazers famed Championship game. Also that year, he served as color analyst for the Blazers. Jones continued for three seasons with CBS, also working with the Denver Nuggets during that time. He served a stint with the USA Cable Network as a commentator for NBA contests.

This is the second season Jones is teaming with his former radio partner, Bill Schonely, on the team's telecasts. The two worked together behind the Blazer radio microphone from 1979 until 1981, when Jones stepped aside to devote a full-time effort to the club's talk show, now known as "Courtside...with Steve Jones", aired 85 minutes prior to every game. He co-hosts, with Pat Lafferty, the weekly program "Courtside: Monday Night" throughout the year.

Jones is a native of Portland who led Franklin High School to the state basketball championship in 1959 before going on to a standout career at the University of Oregon. He paced the Ducks in scoring during the 1963-64 season. Jones earned all-star honors during eight seasons in the now-defunct ABA, then played the 1975-76 season with the Trail Blazers before retiring.

When not behind a microphone or on an airplane, Jones can often be found working on his renowned tennis game.

MIKE RICE

Veteran head basketball coach and basketball commentator Mike Rice begins his fourth year as analyst on the team's radio broadcast.

Rice was an honorable mention All-America basketball player at Duquesne as a senior, when he led the Dukes to a third-place national ranking and an NIT invitation. Selected in the eighth round of the 1962 NBA Draft by the Detroit Pistons, Rice opted instead to pursue a career in coaching. After recording a 245-71 (.773) ledger in 13 years at the high school level, Rice entered the college ranks in 1977 as an assistant coach at his college alma mater.

After being named head coach of the Dukes that year, he guided them to a 62-49 (.559) record from 1978-1982. After leading Duquesne to two NIT appearances and twice earning Eastern Eight "Coach of the Year" honors, Rice went on to Youngstown State in 1982. During his five-year tenure, the Penguins earned a 20-win season and two second-place finishes in the Ohio Valley Conference. Twice he coached squads to the title game in the OVC tournament.

Rice moved to the broadcast booth in 1987 as a college basketball analyst for ESPN. A regular on ESPN's "Big Monday" lineup, he provided commentary for the games in the Big West as the primary analyst for the Western Athletic Conference. In addition to numerous regular season contests, Rice has also worked women's NCAA regional championship games, the Division II national championship game and high school all-star games. In 1989, he added additional broadcast duties with SportsChannel America as the primary analyst on their World Basketball League broadcasts. The WBL was familiar territory to Rice, who joined the Youngstown Pride in 1987 first as head coach, and later as director of basketball operations.

His wife Kathy is a former Duquesne Duchess basketball player. The couple has two daughters, Susan and Stephanie, both graduates of Syracuse University where they played tennis, and one son, Mike, who has played basketball at Fordham University. In his free time, Rice enjoys hustling on the tennis court and golf course.

COURTSIDE...WITH STEVE JONES/COURTSIDE MONDAY NIGHT

From Portland ..... 497-1190 Elsewhere 1-800-345-1190

"If Everything Were Renewable, It Wouldn't Matter What You Used"

Wouldn't it be nice if we could grow a steel I-beam or a plastic board? The truth is, only one building material is renewable...and that's wood.

Wood: The Renewable Product

In Oregon we must reforest every acre that is harvested. That's good for the environment and good for business. And it's been the law for decades.

Wood products can also be recycled. In fact, paper is the most recycled material in the country...and a larger percentage is recycled in the Northwest than in any other region.

As we continue to listen and learn, we will work with Nature to grow new forests that provide us:
The Environment We All Want
And The Wood Products
We All Need.

Oregon Forest Resources Institute, 1440 SW Third Avenue, Suite 305, Portland, Oregon 97201

EDDIE DOUCETTE

Longtime National Basketball Association broadcaster Eddie Doucette is in his second season serving as the Trail Blazers' radio play-by-play announcer. He works alongside analyst Mike Rice.

A 32-year veteran broadcaster, Doucette has also announced NBA basketball action with the Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers, Los Angeles Clippers and Milwaukee Bucks. Prior to the joining the Trail Blazers for the 1992-93 campaign, he handled play-by-play for the NBA Radio Network, and called the 1992 Western Conference Finals when the Blazers defeated the Utah Jazz.

Doucette also has 13 years of experience announcing major league baseball, having served as television voice of the Los Angeles Dodgers and five other big league clubs. He has broadcast National Football League action with the Los Angeles Rams and the Mutual Broadcasting Network. His resume also encompasses a seven-year affiliation with the USA Television Network, where he announced major league baseball, college football and basketball, Grand Prix tennis, pro boxing and NBA basketball with Blazers television analyst Steve Jones.

Known as a tireless community service worker, Doucette is the co-founder and executive vice president of the Midwest Athletes Against Childhood Cancer Fund, which raises one-million dollars annually for childhood cancer research.

A native of Evanston, Ill., Doucette is a graduate of Michigan State , where he majored in broadcast communications. He and his wife, Karen, have two sons, Brett and Cory.

SCOTT LYNN returns for his fourth season as host of "The Fifth Quarter" following each home and road Trail Blazers game broadcast on KEX Radio, 1190 AM. Fans are invited to call in and talk with Scott about their favorite basketball topics. Lynn, who serves as sports director of KEX, has been with the station since May, 1989. Prior to KEX, he was sports director at KGW-TV, where during his nine-year tenure was a three-time recipient of the Oregon Sportscaster of the Year Award. He also earned Oregon AP broadcasting awards for best sports report and best sports special. Born in Lincoln, Ill., Scott is a graduate of Southern Illinois University where he received a degree in mass communication.

PAUL "PUBLIO" CASTRO returns for his fourth season to handle the Spanish language broadcasts of Trail Blazer basketball. And, for the third consecutive year, all 41 Blazers regular season home games will be broadcast in Spanish by KWBY Radio, 940 AM, in Woodburn, Ore. A 1990 graduate of Oregon State University's broadcasting program, Castro, 31, began broadcasting Blazers home games in Spanish prior to the 1989-90 season. A former basketball player at Woodburn High School, he began his association with KWBY during his student days at OSU. Last season, the Trail Blazers joined the San Antonio Spurs, Houston Rockets and Miami Heat as the only teams in the National Basketball Association to broadcast games in Spanish.

Community Involvement

Mark Bryant shares the PRIDE message with Sellwood Middle School students. As part of the NBA's Stay in School program, he explained that P stands for positive mental attitude, the R for respect, I for intelligent decision making, D to keep dreaming dreams and E is for effort in education.

The Trail Blazers and Oregon Arena Corporation are more than just businesses. We're a friend, a neighbor and a teammate of the community. Our desire is to provide leadership in promoting the kinds of values important to all of us. The Blazers are committed to partnership programs throughout Oregon and Southwest Washington. The players, coaches, wives, dancers and staff are personally and enthusiastically involved in a wide variety of projects. From players sharing the the NBA's "Stay in School" message to the Blazers Wives Association collecting canned hams for the St. Vincent dePaul Holiday Food Drive,our team is in action well beyond the confines of the basketball court.

BELOW --- Cliff Robinson spends an afternoon congratulating students from the D.A.R.E. program and autographing graduation notebooks. D.A.R.E. is a youth drug and alcohol education and awareness program.

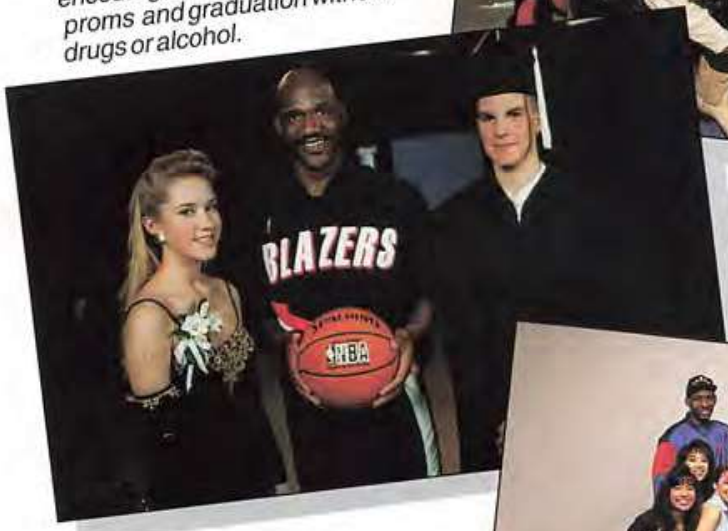
A PORTLAND TRAIL BLAZERS COMMITMENT

BELOW -- Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Oregon, KGW-TV and the Trail Blazers join forces to promote "Celebration Prom/Graduation." Terry Porter served as regional campaign chairman and Clyde Drexler national chairman for the NBA. The program encourages seniors to celebrate proms and graduation without drugs or alcohol.



ABOVE -- Blazers forward Jerome Kersey took timeout during the holiday season to deliver presents to children at Doernbecher Children's Hospital.

RIGHT -- For the fourth year the Blazers teamed up with local recording talent to produce a cassette of uniquely Blazers music to benefit Boys & Girls Clubs of Metropolitan Portland. The 1993 tape, "Blazerstown," featured Blazers Terry Porter, Joe Wolf, Reggie Smith and Tracy Murray along with the Blazers Dancers, R&B musician Andy Stokes, Hakim Muhammed of the Portland-based rap group, U-Krew, and Boys & Girls Club members.

ABOVE -- Clyde Drexler gets a smileout of a young patient as he tapes aPSA for the Doernbecher Children's Hospital Foundation.

ABOVE -- The Trail Blazers Wives Association raised more than $64,000 in 1992-93 through their silent auctions on the main concourse during Blazers games. Proceeds went to the Parenting Skills Skills Center for Prevention of Child Abuse and the Portland Center for Hearing and Speech Intensive Language program. The wives also took their highly collectable memoriabilia to a public auction at a Fred Meyer store.

A PORTLAND TRAIL BLAZERS COMMITMENT

ABOVE -- Nick Jones, community activities coordinator, and Cliff Robinson promote the NBA's "Stay in School" campaign at a local middle school.

ABOVE RIGHT -- Jerome Kersey shoots pool with local Boys & Girls Club members. Kersey and Terry Porter devote time and effort each year encouraging participation and improved grades in school. The players visit clubs, donate game tickets and work with the club's annual Kids Auction and the Blazer Exchange club.

ABOVE -- Buck Williams chats with Cathy Stromvig, president of a local Mothers Against Drinking an Driving (MADD) while making a public service announcement. Williams emphasized the importance of "modifying attitudes toward drinking and driving" throughout the year.

WE PUT OUR SALES PEOPLE IN A UNIQUE POSITION.

At Automated Office Systems we've created a certain flexibility that allows our salespeople to bend over backwards to provide you with a copier program that can fit your diverse needs. Because we carry our own leasing, you're able to upgrade easily if your needs change. Need to skip a payment? Sure, we can do that. What if your company makes all its money on December 5th. Can you get just one annual payment? darn right. Prefer to rent? Great, we can do that too.

From flexible leasing and renting arrangements to a flexible payment schedule, there's no other copier company in the Pacific Northwest that offers as much flexibility as we do. Canon offers the highest in quality and we back it up with flexible service.

Automated Office Systems is a user-friendly copier company– it's also the Northwest's largest Canon dealer.

For an office nearest you, give us a call at 1-800-275-1793.

(WARNING: AVOID DRIVING WITH HOT BEVERAGES BETWEEN YOUR LEGS.)

The power of the all-new Toyota Supra might just take you by surprise. It's definitely not your Sunday drive, take-the-kids-to-school, slow lane, coffee-sipping kind of car. No way. This is a super high performance, incredibly powerful, road-hugging, give-your-friends-an-inferiority-complex kind of car. The kind with a world-class power-to-weight ratio and a 6-speed transmission. Its 3.0 litre, 24-valve inline-6 with twin sequential turbochargers delivers 320 horsepower. And its double wishbone suspension, 4-wheel/4-channel Anti-Lock Brake System (ABS) with ventilated discs and dual air bags makes the Supra as reassuring to drive as it is fast. With an adrenalin rush like that, who needs caffeine?

"I love what you do for me."
